"No gown in the world—be it fashioned from cloth of gold and hemmed with sables—can make a woman beautiful when age has etched cruel lines into her face. And a great gown is bitter irony when its wearer has lost the clear radiance, the firm contours of youth"

HAVANA

CUBA'S progress on the path to recovery has brought courage and comfort to her hotel and amusement interests. The past few months have witnessed a marked increase in tourist trade, and preparations have been made for one of the most active seasons ever enjoyed by the Island Republic's famous winter resort.

The uncertainty of the past few years, has given place to a feeling of stability, and the hotel interests of the island are backing their confidence with substantial cash investments so as to be in a better position to meet the demands of globe trotters and winter resort devotees.

"The constructive policies inaugurated during the administration of President Carlos Mendieta must be credited with much of the improvement," said Mr. Will P. Taylor. "Cuban business men are in a happy frame of mind and money is circulating more freely. Great benefits have flowed from the reciprocal trade treaty with the United States. Sugar prices have soared to the highest level in almost six years. Coffee, and other agricultural products have shared in the rise. There has been a marked increase in exports as well as imports. Shipment of tomatoes to California and the East last season was so active at one point that Cuba found itself with an inadequate supply for its own consumption and had to make up the deficiency with hasty imports from the United States.

"Naturally the amusement and hotel industry has found it possible under these conditions to raise the funds for an enlargement of their facilities and have been encouraged to undertake ventures which would not have been considered a few years ago.

"Governmental authorities have lent sympathetic aid in this recovery program. Public improvements have been installed and Havana is prepared to greet the eye of the tourist with new civic adornments. Chief among these is the magnificent new esplanade visible from the ships entering the harbor. Effectively landscaped with royal and co-coanut palms, the esplanade rises to a crest in the heroic-sized equestrian statue of the famous Cuban patriot, Maximo Gomez.

"The esplanade is the terminus of the recently completed boulevard which skirts the oceanside and passes the Malecon, the Maine Monument and the Presidential Palace.

"With its rare scenic qualities, its rich natural coloring its exhilarating climate and its endless list of social diversions and recreations, Havana is becoming increasingly important both as a restful resort and a gathering place for those who seek more strenuous pastimes. An abundance of barracuda, tarpon and marlin in the waters thereabout entice the deep-sea fishermen. Among the celebrites who make their annual pilgrimage to Havana for this exciting sport is Ernest Hemingway, the novelist.

"The racing season has started and the track is open on Thursdays, Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. Night clubs and gaming places like the Sans Souci and La Playa Casino are in full swing."

Oriental Park presents a picture of gayety and animation with its throngs of pleasure seekers who find the beautiful race-track an ideal place to spend a pleasant afternoon trying to outguess the bang-tails. This picturesque track is becoming increasingly popular with the American visitors to the sunny isle and Saturday afternoons and Sundays find a gala crowd witnessing the splendid program of races offered to the followers of the horses.

Jai-Alai, the Cuban version of Pelota has attracted many devotees and new fans with its remarkably speedy play and interesting background. The Fronton featuring this sport is packed to the rafters every night by an enthusiastic crowd who wager on the outcome of the game with the enthusiasm of the thoroughly absorbed fan. A visit to the Fronton is always followed by many more, for the game with its highlights and expert performers proves a magnet to the newly initiated enthusiast.

The Havana night clubs compare very favorably with the clubs in America and this season has brought a representative gathering of American guests to the bright lights of the Sans Souci and La Playa Casino. The Sans Souci with its dance floor and tables amid the tropical beauty of the swaying palm trees and the gaming rooms with their complete assortment of games of chance is a popular rendezvous for the care free gatherings of the large colony of American tourists now in Cuba.

Rural Cuba appeals to many of the seekers after the unusual who find that peasant life has changed but little in the isle of flowers in the last hundred years. The Cuban "guajiro" still dances the "zapateo" as he did a century ago, to the accompaniment of the guitar, the "clave" and his own melancholy voice and he still lives in the "bohio," constructed entirely of different parts of the palm tree.

High up on a bluff overlooking the harbor amidst a tropical setting of graceful palms the Hotel National welcomes the incoming liner with its cargo of visitors who find the excellently appointed Hotel an ideal base for their Cuban stay.

POLO IN A TROPICAL SETTING

R ANKING with the dare-devil sports of the world, polo is attaining an eminence in the sports category which bids fair to outstrip the more universally recognized games featuring broken bones and hairbreadth escapes.

Witness a game at Phipps Field, where a tri-weekly schedule of championship polo greets the visiting sportsmen and the caliber of the games being played by the representative teams of the Gulf Stream Club has brought out a surprisingly large attendance.

Watching the game as it is played in the tropical setting of Phipps Field's distinctive background combines the thrill of the game with the delight of inspecting one of the finset polo fields in the world.

Rows of magnificent Royal Palms separate three perfectly appointed polo fields. The mirror smooth expanses of immacuulately groomed turf veiled by groups of pine trees which extend half way around each amphitheatre, glimpsed through swaying pines presents one of the most attractive settings for an outdoor sports event ever encountered.

Riding like Cossacks, with a dare-devil recklessness only to be seen in the thoroughly fatalistic, the horsemen start the game by charging down the field en masse in a squirming group of swinging mallets and flying hoofs.

A gleaming white ball whistles out of the press and a wildly riding blue shirted Centaur outstrips the field to capture and strike the elusive spheroid toward his opponent"s goal. Apparently headed for a sure score he is bumped off his course by a white jacketed horseman while another of his antagonists pilfers the ball from under his horse's hoofs and whacks it toward the other end of the field. Follows a wild scramble which looks like all of the wild western pictures you have ever witnessed rolled into one, with first one then another capturing the ball in a milling seemingly inextricable group of turning, twisting horses and wildly swinging mallet's.

Again one of the blues is seen propelling the ball with long hard swings away from the mass of men and horses. A white shirted opponent snakes the ball away toward the center of the field while the blue shirted player is in the middle of a back swing. Stopping his horse so fast that the fast charging animal seems to slide on his tail, the blue joins two of his team and sets out in hot pursuit. Catching the white they find that the ball has already been captured by one of their own number. Charging after the ball which is now being banged lustily by the opposition they are just in time to see the ball go flying through their own goal posts.

The whirlwind of action which continues through the six chukkers of the game features all of the trick riding encountered in the top flight circus troups, the rough riding of the real McCoy in Westerns and the fire and dash of big league ice hockey in which the contestants play with such enthusiasm that they often bend their hockey sticks over each other's heads after a spirited exchange.

Here we note the most striking of the phenomena encountered in big time polo. No matter how violent the collision between the hard riding horsemen or how near to being decapitated the player may have been by the wildly swinging mallet of his opponent, one invariably hears the "Sorry old man" of the offender answered with "O. K." or some other courteous retort.

Anyone who has ridden horses will marvel at the sheer dare deviltry displayed by the ace riders in polo. A glimpse of Laddie Sanford, Winston Guest, Raymond Firestone, Cyril Harrison, Earl Hopping and other big league polo players in action discloses courage of an exceedingly high order.

In a recent game played between Laddie Sanford's Gulf Stream quartette and Prince Mdivani's Georgians, Earl Hopping, playing with the Georgians, took a nasty spill with his horse and sustained a broken collar bone. Enduring the pain with the stoicism of an Indian, Mr. Hopping joked and laughed with his fellow-fatalists while his arm was being strapped to his side by the club physician. "I'll have to put skid chains on that mule of mine" was the only comment he made on the accident, which might have terminated his career as a big time polo player.

SEA SIDE CHIC

BEACH activities occupy an important place in the daily schedule of most Palm Beach residents, so a large share of attention is naturally concentrated on a wardrobe that is practical and yet colorful and becoming. The feminine shopper will have no trouble in finding things of this type in Palm Beach. The trouble lies in being able to decide on a few from the smart, carefully chosen items displayed in the shops. In fact, there seems almost to be a conspiracy afoot to tempt us all beyond endurance.

Down at Peck and Peck's Worth Avenue Shop there's a bathing suit of handblocked linen in a floral print that's sure to be a copy of someone's favorite evening gown. The decolletage is square with a little pleated detail down the front, finished with a tailored bow. The brief skirt flares

Printed Fabrics are the rage in bathing suits and the one-piece suit, not unlike a child's romper, is a particular favorite. The model pictured is of Everfast cotton with ricrae braid trimming. The white linen helmet has a button-on strap crown. From Best and Co.,

Miami Beach Shop.

A cool, washable linen hat by Jean King, the American Designer. Just a briw with crossed narrow strips for a crown, and straps and brim unbutton, and lay flat, so that it may be laundered very easily. An indispensible hat for southern wear, for it is both practical and charming. Doesn't lose shape.

ever so gently, and the entire lining (including panties) is of white silk jersey. If you have a fondness for suits like this you'll have to be strong willed to resist it. They also show a smart navy wool jersey for the mature figure, allover embroidered in coin dots of red and white floss. It's made with the surplice front that was a Riviera success last summer. The skirt has deep pleats in front and jersey underbody.

Novel looking capes of ribbed cotton are made full and swingy, with alternate wedges of rhumba coral and turquoise. The hood is long and pointed like an elf's cap.

Those comfortable, presentable pajama suits for all-day wear come in printed acetate crepe in the best resort shades. The shirt has a buttoned front with bone buttons and an inverted pleat in back, and the slacks are long and smartly cut.

By the way—if you've wondered where to find one of those long, fitted and flared coats seen at the Breakers beach lately, Peck and Peck have them in snow-white terry with brilliantly contrasted sashes.

"Bath and Tennis" is the name given to a distinctive culotte suit presented by Madame Najla Mogabgab at her Breakers Salon. The clouded print of black and gray crepe is made in backless style with a shirt collar to form a halter. Bow knots of green glass adorn the front and match the jaunty waistcoat of green corduroy velvet worn over it.

Martha West and Jean King are showing beach togs

so smart you'll be going around in circles trying to choose between a culotte suit of natural linen and a cool weather costume of navy wool. The first is done in heavy peasant linen, embroidered with navy dots. The tuck-in shirt has high pockets and an inverted pleat in back, and the full, nice fitting culotte has zipper closing. The jersey suit is done in navy, and fitted to flatter. Well tailored pockets distinguish the suit and a dashing air is furnished by the sash and kerchief of lipstick red and white silk.

A very good-looking beach outfit displayed here is cut from dark raspberry and white printed cotton, with halter neck. The matching reversible cape is hooded and lined with white terry cloth to suit your more capricious moods. Wool swim suits with exceptional fit, have a raised key design that's distinctive and new. They can be coupled with a swagger-back coat buttoned up high at the throat and showing plenty of pockets.

Armfuls of little crownless hats are shown in this attractive shop. You may expose your "crowning glory," to the southern sun in a wagon wheel brim with a gay band, or one of the stitched linen models fastened with cuff links—of all things. It's actually fun to take it apart for laundering. The popular pirate hats with kerchief tops can be found here also.

Rosalie Tyson of Port Washington, L. I., who has opened for her first season here has copied exactly her size 14 bathing suits for the larger woman. An especially striking ensemble includes a suit of agua acetate embroidered with colored floss. The shoulders are shirred, the bodice softly draped and the skirt has slender lines. Over it is worn a tailored frock of the same fabric made with notched collar and buttoned front, so even if you don't go near the water, you'll be well dressed for lunch or cocktails. There's a love of a Tyrolean hat here in lacquered straw with a typical boxed crown adorned with gay bands and tassels. Miss Tyson herself wears one with her favorite beach costume which consists of navy culotte and a bright red fireman's shirt.

Up at Hattie Carnegie's on County Road you'll find a culotte ensemble that has already brought them loads of flattering comments. The jacket is of white alpaca with buttoned slant pockets and an open neck to disclose the flowered challis tuck-in. The alpaca trousers are cut generously, and faultlessly tailored. Mexican linen, heaven blue and very slubby, makes a shirt with just the right casual air to wear with raspberry slacks. You'll agree that it's a stunning costume which has combined flattery and comfort with a very knowing hand.

A smooth looking bathing suit shown here of black alpaca is as daring and distracting as a chorine's costume. It has a halter top and low back, with pleats in the skirt stitched to here and released just in the nick of time.

Both of these knitted bathing suits were made in England for Bonwit Teller. The fan shaped insert on the new suit is a new detail, and a very slenderizing one. The short white swagger coat is of chenile.

TASTES AND TOILETTES

THE intangible witchery of Palm Beach nights is made even more enchanting by the lovely gowns worn by smart women, in the softly lighted patios and club gardens of the resort. Pastels and bright jewel tones vie with black and white, and soft graceful panels sway in the night breezes. Jewels glitter and furs form a flattering background for the face

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Lady Cavendish (Adele Astaire) wore at a recent dinner at the Colony Club, a simple little gown of black tulle embroidered with cellophane in daisy pattern. The bodice had a high standing collar and the skirt flared sharply from the knees.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

The Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest on her way to a dinner the other evening, was noted in a beautiful cape of Royal Russian ermine. The edge was petal cut in the new fashion and the high neckline was fastened with little tails of the ermine under the chin.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. William Russell Huntley wore at a luncheon given by Mrs. Hugh Dillman at Playa Rienta, their ocean front estate, a suit of white waffle crepe with the slimming skirt pointing above the belt, on a bodice of gay plaid linen in reds and blues. A short fitted jacket and a smart white toyo sailor banded in plaid, completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Walter Gaston who is a guest at the Breakers looked charming the other night in a gown of Flamingo red tulle fashioned with moulded hipline and very full skirt appliqued in flower design. Full sleeves were puffed at the elbow, and the softly shirred bodice carried out the applique design.

Mrs. Sheridan S. Norton, also of the Breakers, wore a striking gown the other evening, created in sapphire blue chiffon, with graceful, accordian pleated skirt. A dramatic, pleated scarf of fuschia crossed over the front, slipping through the decolletage straps to float softly backward like wings.

 $\diamond \; \diamond \; \diamond \; \diamond$

While attending a dinner last week, Mrs. Phil H. Sawyer was attired in a gown of aqua triple sheer in the new, slender silhouette. Shirring at the front and on the neckline of the fur-trimmed cape gave a lovely, soft line, and the latter was slashed to reveal the low decolletage as she danced.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Nathan D. Bill was beautifully attired in a suit of aqua crepe at luncheon the other day. The bodice of net was hand embroidered and bloused softly to tie in front. The hip length jacket had a well tailored notched collar.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Frank B. McQuesten of Boston, looked lovely at a Breakers dinner, wearing a long-sleeved gown of sheer white crepe with shadow design. The front of the skirt was tucked through the hips, then released for fullness. A glittering floral pattern on the bodice was outlined in bugle beading.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Julien St. C. Chaqueneau of New York who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jay O'Brien at Villa de Sarmiento, wore at the Formal opening of the Colony Club, a gown of fuschia chiffon with wide, graceful panels floating from the shoulders and waist.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

At the same table, Miss Dorothy Fell was noted in coral brocade fashioned with basque bodice and short puffed sleeves. The long skirt flared widely and created a striking impression in the softly lighted club.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Robert H. McAdoo looked charming in a short sequin covered jacket of turquoise blue, worn over a white crepe gown, with bands of the blue extending from the camisole front to the waistline in back, where they tied in a loose knot with the ends dropping to the floor.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Vincent Bloss Ward visited the Breakers Cabana Club recently and wore a tunic frock of chartreuse crepe made with a smart shirred cardigan of the same fabric. A cluster of beet red carnations at the neckline furnished a striking contrast. Her wide brimmed hat was of white fabric straw with a flat bow posed on the brim.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy was noted at the Breakers Cabana Club attractively attired in a frock of navy crepe printed with white dice. The tiny white collar was fastened with a brilliant clip. The skirt had a white godet in front and tiers of narrow pleating in the back. With it she wore a becoming hat combining white toyo with navy gabardine in telling effect.

 \diamond \diamond \diamond

When lunching at the Seminole Club on Sunday, Mrs. Walter Hopkins of the Breakers, was attired in a striking ensemble of perfume green, adorned with a cluster of tiny artificial vegetables, and a scarf of pimiento red. Her smart hat was of deep green milan with matching ribbon trim.

Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener wore recently an attractive printed frock with the V neck and short sleeves outlined with dressmaker detail. A cluster of flowers was posed on the crushed belt and on the crown of her wide-brimmed hat.

While attending the races at Hialeah recently, Miss Eve Mortimer, a debutante of this season, was smartly frocked in printed linen with buttoned front, and scarf collar tied in a soft bow under the chin. Her shallow crowned hat of white toyo was trimmed with a flat, tailored bow. Miss Justine Cutting, who accompanied her, wore a two-piece frock of woven-in cotton in a pastel shade. The blouse had a small collar and buttoned front, and the skirt featured clusters of pleats in front. With it she wore a becoming, brimless hat with a high crown.

Miss Dorothy Richards was noted at the Colony Club last week, wearing a gown of deep violet blue satin, moulded at the hips and then softly flared. The decolletage straps were of glittering rhinestones.

PALM BEACH CLUB ACTIVITIES

FROM the palm shaded tranquility of the tropical lagoons to the comparatively turbulent setting of the wave capped Atlantic, the Spanish Castles which form the Club of Palm Beach Colony are teeming with color and animation. The exclusive gatherings of sports loving and socially inclined resorters find the distinctive background of the strategically located Club ideal for their respective tastes in recreation and entertainment.

The golf enthusiast finds a diversity of excellent courses each featuring its individual attraction in beauty of landscaping, originality of design and ingenuity of hazard and trap. The flashing volley of well placed forehand and backhand shots witnessed in the splendidly appointed tennis courts and the crowd of absorbed fans in attendance at the spirited games testify to the interest of the Colony in this form of diversion and the excellence of the caliber of tennis to be found in the smart Clubs.

The more leisurely inclined of the socialites bask in the sun amid the colorful gathering of gayly decorated beach umbrellas, or gather in pleasantly chatting groups at their picturesque Cabanas, with the excellent cuisine and service of the smart sea side Clubs at their disposal.

Teas and luncheons have been characterized by a charming informality noted in most of the social gatherings this season and Club life has been enhanced by many of these vivacious and interesting gatherings.

The Duchess of Sutherland and Lady Abingdon were among members of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, Jr.'s party, held recently at the Seminole Club. The Ryans, who are noted for their gracefully informal entertaining were hosts to several of their friends at one of the tastefully arranged luncheons of the Club. Other members of their party included Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair, who are putting the finishing touches to their beautiful new home on the ocean front in Palm Beach; Mrs. John C. O. Marriott and Mr. Terence Phillips and Mr. Rodman Wanamaker II.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair are in the position of not knowing whether to turn over their home to the army of workmen who obviously can't bear to leave the lovely sea side villa or to start construction on another residence so as to coax the various craftsmen cluttering up their rooms out of their present dwelling. No doubt their plight formed a subject for the animated group at the Ryan's table to chat about.

Another interesting luncheon party was given by Mr. Jules S. Bache, who entertained the Countess Sylvia Poulette, Lady Bridgett Poulett, Mrs. Frederick L. Richards and Mr. J. J. Wyle.

Entertaining at luncheon before leaving for their shooting box at Kingstree, S. C., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer gave a luncheon at the Seminole for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis, Mrs. Desmond Fitzgerald, Miss Grace Amory, Miss Vivian Dixon, Major Cecil Pryce Harrison, Major Ernest Bellamy and Mr. Douglas Paige.

Intimate little luncheons ranging from twosomes to gatherings of eight or ten friends predominated at the Club last week. Among the twosomes, Mr. Hugh Dillman was noted lunching with Mr. Ralph Wilkins of Chicago at a table overlooking the beautiful fairways of the course.

Mr. and Mrs. Vadim Stefan Makaroff were members of a luncheon party at the Seminole with Mr. and Mrs. Luis Martinez de las Rivas and Mr. and Mrs. Wyllis Rossiter Betts. A former admiral of the Russian fleet, Mr. Makaroff has been the hero of several marine engagements, fighting with Admiral Kolchak against the Bolsheviks. His father, the famous Admiral Stefan Makaroff, went down with his ship in one of the celebrated marine catastrophies of the war with Japan in 1904.

The 42-year-old descendant of a splendid old line of sea rovers upheld family tradition by becoming the hero of a marine contest quite different from those he engaged in during his service under Admiral Kolchak, when he won the annual St. Petersburg-to-

Havana yacht race (248 miles), with an elapsed time of 58 hours, 53 minutes, last year.

Mr. Makaroff has chosen the ideal Club for his stay in Palm Beach for only a hero can wade through the fiendishly contrived traps and hazards of the Seminole golf course without adding to the constantly increasing list of sulphurous epitaphs formed from the comments of the members whose drives fails to cut the middle of the course.

The always distinctive Everglades Club takes on new color with the acquisition of the famous social center by a representative group of leading figures in Palm Beach life, Always a popular spot with the smart cosmopolites of the resort, the recently transferred Club has become more than ever the mecca of the distinguished guests of the colony.

Celebrating the recent purchase of the Everglades Club, the donors to the Everglades Syndicate and members of the Club are holding a victory dinner this evening. The list of purchasers are comprised of the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest, Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Mrs. George Luke Mesker, Mr. John Shepard, Jr., Mr. William Hoops, Mr. A. Atwater Kent, Mr. Eben H. Ellison, Mr. Edward E. B. Adams, Mr. Hugh Dillman, Mr. William Barstow, Col. Backgammon continues to attract the members of the Club with many tournaments featured in the spacious rooms. Following a dinner last Tuesday evening many of the guests indulged in their favorite pastime. Among the backgammon enthusiasts were Mr. and Mrs. Luther Wait, Mr. and Mrs. James King Morris, Baron and Baroness Lo Monaco, Mr. and Mrs. D. Dulany Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hammel, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. B. Adams, Mrs. Robert Hasler, Mrs. Peton J. Van Renselaer, Mrs. Frederick Hattersley, Prince Pio, Mr. Alfred V. Leaman, Jr., Col. Wade Carpenter, Mr. Pierre L. Barbey, Jr., Mr. Clemente Ballen, Mr. Forest Pratt Lindley, Mr. Robert Appleton, Mr. Thomas Shevline and Mr. Parker Bryant.

Many of the members of the Bath and Tennis Club are drawn from the Palm Beach Fleet of yachts anchored in the lovely palm bordered harbor. Mr. and Mrs. Lammot du Pont who arrived recently on their yacht "Nemea," entertained at the Club for their guests. Mr. and Mrs. C. Prevost Boyce of Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. George P. Edmonds.

Prince and Princess Odescalchi were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan at a recent gathering at the colorful sea side Spa which included Mr. and Mrs. George Stevenson Fenton, Mrs. Lawrence A. Furlong, Mrs. C. R. D. Meier and Mr. Lloyd E. Appleton.

Weekly round robin tournaments at the Club and backgammon continue to interest the representative gathering. Backgammon with its spirited auctioning off of players proving an attraction which most of the members enjoy. Many a palpitating deb would like to acquire some of the eligible bachelors who are bid in for a song, at many times the price they bring in this amusing pastime. Mrs. Granville Fortescue won first place in the initial tournament held by the Club this season.

The weekly round robin mixed doubles was won by Miss Sonia Phipps and Mr. Luther Wait, who flashed some rare tennis to win the tournament. Miss Phipps and Mr. Wait have shown some nice team work in their march through the opposition furnished them at the Club.

The attendance at these colorful contests proves the interest of the members in this form of entertainment.

The sun kissed patio of the Club has proven very popular with the members and guests who find the sheltered flagstones and lovely tropical shrubbery a very desirable setting for their gay luncheons and parties. When the breezes are a bit chill the lovely courtyard is especially attractive, exposed as it is to the beaming rays of the sun and sheltered from the cool drafts which sometimes detour around the warming currents of the Gulf Stream.

Among the many delightful luncheons featured in the lovely garden spot was a party given by Mrs. John Edwin Dietz, who entertained Mrs. McKay LeRoy, Mrs. James H.

Kennedy, Mrs. Zenas Sears, Mrs. Lawrence A. Furlong, Mrs. C. R. D. Meiers, Mrs. Pardee Odman, Mrs. William Russell Huntley, Mrs. George H. Nicolai and Mrs. Edward D. Stair.

WITH THE PALM BEACH FLEET

HOW often have we all made the remark "Wouldn't it be grand if we could take this house with us on our trip?" Most of us have never expected to have that hypothetical question answered but the correct reply to that query is found in the floating palaces of mahogany, shining brass work and gleaming paint which comprise the maritime colony of Palm Beach and points north, south, east and west.

Numbering among them some of the finest names in American contemporary life, the imposing list of Yacht owners whose craft form a picturesque addition to the palm lined water front, have found the ideal method of staying at home and travelling at the same time.

No land owner takes more pride in enhancing the beauty of his home or estate than the roving yachtsman does in keeping his trim boat in immaculate order. The entourage necessary to the maintenance of a first class sea going home compares in number and quality with the staff found in the well appointed homes ashore.

Following their respective hobbies within hailing distance of their movable bases, the leisurely living yacht owners touch at this port and that while they fish, play golf or do any one of the dozens of things people do when they are either living at home, or visiting some isolated spot for a bit of shooting or fishing.

When they leave ports like Palm Beach and Newport for a cruise to some far away spot for a two weeks hunting trip, they need not worry over the "catch as catch can" eating, animated bed clothes, which cause the weary hunter to scratch, groan and toss the whole night long, or the thousand and one inconveniences besetting the intrepid adventurer who journeys forth to shoot, fish, collect rare specimens, or follow whatever form of amusement or hobby he may choose to select.

After a hard day's fishing, hunting, etc., etc., he finds the exhilaration of a hot tub; possibly the administrations of a competent massuer; luxurious living quarters; the same excellent cuisine to be found in the finest restaurants in Palm Beach and grandest of all, the society of charming ladies. He enjoys the music of the top-notch orchestras; spends a night vicariously at the Opera or dances with the lady of his choice under the moon, with the soft music of the waves accompanying the strains of the music from his radio and lays his head to rest on the softest and most comfortable bed the factories of the country can produce.

What a contrast to the poor chap who is a member of an expedition to some remote base where the end of the day finds him and his masculine companions sitting around a tent fighting mosquitoes, or worse still parking in an uncomfortable chair in the lobby of the only hotel in the village suffering from the twin ravages of dyspepsia and boredom.

Possibly the greatest advantage the yacht owner has over the land tenant is his ability to pull up anchor for a change of base when his neighbor insists on having cabbage for three successive days. The annoyances of the little boy next door who practices on his saxophone just when you are getting ready to take a nap and the vocal exercises of the lady warbler whose heroic attempts to reach high C usually find her voice cracking on B. flat, hold no terror for the happy go lucky yachtsman who simply drifts down the stream to a quieter anchorage.

Palm Beach is sheltering the largest gathering of trim craft gathered here for some years in her harbor.

Among the many yachts visiting the beautiful palm lined lagoon the "Aldebaran," 200 foot boat of Mr. Francis Taylor, is tops as to length and displacement. The entry of Mr. Taylor's superb pleasure boat and the "Placida," 190-foot floating palace of Mr. Harvey G. Haskell of Wilmington Delaware, prove the practicability of bringing large pleasure cruisers into Palm Beach Harbor. They are indubitably forerunners of similar type boats which are sure to follow Mr. Taylor and Mr. Haskell in choosing Palm Beach for a winter base for their activities.

The "Mariposa" of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gould spends her time between Palm Beach and the Keys where Mr. Gould finds the bone fish and the tarpon fascinating game. These elusive sea rovers are among the trickiest of the finny tribe to capture and only the dyed in the wool expert selects them for prospective victims.

Dr. W. J. Mayo, internationally renowned head of the Mayo Brothers' hospital of Rochester, Minnesota, steamed into the harbor last week with his "North Star" for an indefinite stay. The eminent physician finds the whispering waves and the soothing sun an ideal combination for the program of relaxation he finds necessary after his responsibilities as head of one of the two finest hospitals in the world.

Mrs. James P. Donahue finds life aboard her yacht "Freedom" so delightful that she has decided not to open her seaside castle, "Cielito Lindo," this season. Mr. Woolworth Donohue, her son, has become so accustomed to moving about the world that life in a stationary setting holds no attractions for him, and he, possibly is responsible for Mrs. Donohue's resolve to remain aboard the "Freedom." Except for brief excursions to their Cabana colony and visits with their friends, the winter schedule of the Donohues calls for the tranquil background of their yacht as a base for their activities.

The one time mayor of Milwaukee, Mr. Sherburn M. Becker, with his "Sangamo" adds to the galaxy of prominent yatchtsmen and their picturesque craft now using the harbor of Palm Beach as their winter headquarters. The popular Mr. Becker, whose home port is now New York city, is anchored in the lake far from shore where he can sun himself blissfully on the deck of his boat without worrying about his neighbors.

A long rakish looking craft the "La Verriere II, with Mr. Arthur J. Moulton of New York and Paris aboard, floats in impregnable seclusion just off the Royal Park docks where importunate bond salesmen and ambitious promoters cannot harry him. Mr. Moulton finds his recently purchased yacht the answer to the problem of dodging the incessantly ringing phone of his earth bound home.

The golf loving Mr. Dobyne not only shoots a sweet game of Scotchman's polo but has an inexhaustible fund of reminiscences concerning the game with which he keeps his friends amused. The Dobyne yacht is one of the best equipped boats in the harbor and is always a picture of shining brasswork and fresh white paint.

Among the yachts in and out of the harbor in the last few weeks are the Enchantress III, owned by Colonel Louis J. Kolb, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Seamaw, Mr. James Kimberly's beautiful boat; Billy, trim craft of Mr. Hoffman Nickerson, of New York city; the Kitty Ann II, whose owner is Mr. J. D. Mallory's Bonnie Dundee; Jedge, owned by Mr. B. W. Samson of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Another group of interesting craft includes the Harwell, Mr. A. W. Hobler's boat, whose home port is Bronxville, New York; the Parago, out of New York, whose owner is Mr. I. Silverman; Montego, 89-foot boat of Mr. E. P. Lawaon, of New York city; Jean III, owner, Mr. J. S. Caldwell of Syracuse, N. Y.; Truant, 121-feet, owner, Mr. Truman H. Newberry, of Newport, R. McKEE JUNGLE GARDEN

AN EXOTIC combination of Amazonian jungle and the rare gardens of India and Ceylon viewed without the tedium incidental to a trip to either of these attractions in their native setting is revealed in the McKee Jungle Gardens near Vero Beach, a scant 70 miles north of Palm Beach, lying between the blue-green of the Indian River and the macadam perfection of the Federal Highway.

Exquisite garden scenes which heretofore have been glimpsed only by fortunate travelers from the back of an elephant in journeying to the estates of some Indian Maharajah and twisted savannas of impenetrable jungle, associated with a trip through the Amazon jungles with gun-bearer and safari, are seen here from smooth splendidly surfaced paths. One moves through and around a colorful mixture of virgin and cultivated beauty with as little discomfort and inconvenience as would be experienced in a visit to your neighborhood theatre.

All the eerie beauty of an Ecuadorial jungle sally, with no savage head hunter lying in wait for you behind the riot of tropical shrubbery; no hours of wading hip deep in primordial ooze; no buzzing tse tse flies; and when you approach the beautifully cultivated vistas of loveliness in the gardens, no swaying precariously on the back of a smelly fly blown Indian elephant.

Ripley could save himself years of research and collecting for his "Believe it or not" column by spending a day in the gardens with one of the competent guides furnished by the enterprising management. And if Mr. Ripley has an eye for the unreal and bizarre in beauty as well as a nose for the unique in data, he will spend one of the happiest days of his life in enriching his sum of knowledge.

Greeting the visitor at the very entrance of the gardens amid the invitingly cool green vines intertwined around the latticed arch is the swan flower, or Dutchman's pipe, one of nature's prodigies, measuring 63 inches from handle to bowl when it has attained its growth. High school boys and University students with their abbreviated pipes hanging slack in amazement have been known to linger here for hours.

Traversing the immaculately groomed expanse of lawn found on leaving the arch a glimpse to the left discloses a scene of breath taking beauty. Easy it is to imagine that you are in a fairy land of enchantment on glimpsing the pond with its countless clusters of water lilies in varying shades ranging from rose to orchid, the fern covered banks with their vari-colored flowers peeping through. The gracefully swaying bullrushes with each delicate stem topped by a lovely fluff of haze and, mirrored in the crystal clear waters of the pool, a background of feathery coconut trees framing an artistically designed rock bridge.

With a mental resolve to revisit this delightful setting before leaving the gardens, one continues the journey toward the jungle looming through the trees and shrubs which frame the azalea garden. Trickling along side the path and branching off into the cool fastness of the distant savanna are sparkling little streams. A soft carpet of green moss covers the bed of the brooks, blending beautifully with the pastel shades of the bordering blooms. The transparent clearness of the water discloses a tinv fern like growth interspersed with the deeper green of the moss.

Amidst the beauty of the garden bordering the jungle, a tree whose frail growth of leaves form one of nature's most amazing storehouses is found. Within its capacious bosom 124 gallons of palm wine is made and stored during one season ready for use at any moment. There are many of these trees in the gardens and a thought strikes the serious student in passing. If Edgar Rice Bourough's

Bordering the wild growth of the forest and the cool clear depths of the stream, the graceful fragility of the Royal palms enhance this pastoral scene of tropical loveliness jungle character "Tarzan" had been brought up in this environment instead of the African setting he was planted in, the shriek of triumph emitted by the ape-man after a kill would probably have been accompanied by several very unheroic hiccoughs and maybe a burp or two.

Scattered throughout the gradually thickening tangle of vegetation, little bushes sporting beans of a dark red hue are found to be coffee plants in their wild state. The quality of the coffee brewed from the uncultivated beans may be ascertained from any of the old settlers in Florida, who almost without exception utilized the wild plants for their morning beverage.

As one penetrates farther into the jungle, huge oak trees are discerned intermingled with the palm and coconut trees. The palm trees are festooned with shoe string ferns, a rare growth which is found throughout the garden wherever the palms are noted.

Para rubber trees grown for experimental purposes; white palms, the sturdy trees which will stand any wind no matter how intense and plants which are sometimes found in Florida and other settings are found here attaining enormous proportions. Sea grapes, native British Guiana, with leaves larger than any hard wood plant in the world; elkhorn ferns growing out of rotting logs and a riot of vegetation growing out of and on everything in reach, form an astonishing sight to the invader of the colorful medley of native and transplanted beauty.

Around a bend in the path a Seminole Indian village, complete with its native canoe and little palm thatched huts is glimpsed and on closer inspection a huge clearing in the matted undergrowth, housing a colony of monkeys, an enormous shaggy bear and a caricature of a bear called an ant bear. The ant bear, one of the strangest anomalies of the animal world, who is a member of the coon family, but subsists on a diet of ants, is a cross in appearance between a bear, an ant eater and a pomeranian lap dog. Soft nosed deers from an enclosure across the way reach out and nibble corn daintily from the outstretched hand.

Through the jungle ahead another opening in the tangled network of trees and shrubbery is seen. A natural clearing encircled by towering cabbage palms 70 feet high with an enormous oak tree in the center. A mass of brillant green ferns are seen growing from the tops of the sky scraper palms. The ferns growing at such an altitude present the appearance of many miniature gardens planted high in the air.

In this vicinity the Panama hat plant is found and you find that the dreamy wisps of Spanish moss which cover almost everything in sight is not moss at all but a member of the pineapple family; also that the rare asparagus fern which abounds here, is not a fern but an asparagus. Here too is found the "resurrection fern," growing from the trunks of trees. This fern comes out when it is going to rain and folds up like a tent when a dry spell is indicated. Mr. Ripley would find this natural barometer at least equal to any devised through human ingenuity.

It is easy to realize the source of the name of "live oak tree" in the tour of the gardens. The lofty oak trees are a source of life for countless specimens of the plant world. One immense oak found here, whose branches curl around the tops of the 70-foot palm trees has been plugged by a Government expert and found to be 550 years old. Ponce de Leon may have slept under its spreading limbs in his quest for the fountain of youth.

The berries of a certain variety of palm tree growing in this section of the jungle often ferment on the trees

The unusual beauty of the lily filled lagoon with its quaint stone bridge and delicately formed bullrushes is accentuated by the tangled growth of the jungle in the background

Rivaling the dream like setting of the Taj Mahal, the opaque waters of the lagoon mirrors the beauties of the tropical foriage, which blend with the varicolar of the water lilies and the deep green of the lily pads in the reflected picture and the spectacle of a flock of intoxicated robins careening around the glade is not uncommon. Anyone who has never seen a troup of staggering robins singing the bird equivalent of "Sweet Adeline" while they zigzag their erratic way homeward will view this spectacle with either considerable amusement, or disapproval, dependent on the viewpoint of the spectator.

Inquiry discloses that "Vanilla," a small white flower which is a true orchid, grows here and that one of the beans gleaned from this plant lasts longer than a dollar's worth of synthetic vanilla. The banana trees with their upside down cargo of edibles call to mind the salient fact that they are true practicers of birth control, as they do not grow more fruit than they can support. A banana tree never drops any of its precious fruit. The tree may sport pounds and pounds of blossoms but once it has reached the quota of bananas it can handle without keeping its nose to the grindstone it automatically stops forming fruit.

The character of the jungle changes now and many lagoons with tortuous twisted stumps of trees come into view. The interlocking, grotesquely contorted trees resemble prehistoic animals locked in mortal combat. Writhing in and out among the trees and swamp, like huge primeval snakes palmetto roots of phenomenal size heighten the illusion of a glade filled with monstrously formed animals.

The contrast between the sorrowful glade and the enchanting vista which presents itself after leaving the maze of weirdly formed tree trunks in their spooky setting, cause the imaginative among the visitors to conjure up visions of fiery dragons and the clank of knightly armor in this dreamily unreal setting. The miriad of sparkling sapphire lakes spanned by picturesque rock bridges; the frothy bits of ectoplasm floating from the trees; the vivid pattern of flowers on the banks of the lagoon; the thousands of delicately colored water lilies set like jewels on the soft green lily pads; the many stone benches where the fair Isolde or Guinivere may await Sir Gareth or Launcelot and the all pervading scent of the ylang plang perfume trees, combine to transport the dreamer into the realms of the fanciful.

Following the lovely lagoons, the lily pads become larger and closer together. One charming little lake with its soft green bullrushes, delicate ferns and flowers framing the lily

The wraith like froth of gracefully hanging moss covering the giant trees and the riot of tropical shrubbery form a lovely picture in this tranquill scene filled water convinces the visitor that the minute they pass out of sight and hearing, Charles Kingsley's little water babies will float out from underneath the enormous little pads and resume the diving and splashing which the intruder has rudely interrupted. Scattered about the land-scape, cleverely designed giant mushrooms which can be used for shelters, lend an elfin touch to the fairy-like setting.

A vista of charm and grace is the "Cathedral" where several rows of symmetrically growing trees and the meandering brooks and trails tunnelled under interlapping fonds of gracefully bending foliage make a picture of rare delicacy.

Following one of the brooks past a miniature cataract and falls carved through banks of jasamine with their starlike blossoms, one encounters another eerie picture of denuded skeletons of trees reaching up with countless arms like a deluge scene from the Bible.

This brief interlude in the parade of beauties which have passed before the traveler is not without its touch of loveliness. Another exotic variety of orchid is seen growing among the bordering trees. Aptly named the "Spider orchid" this specimen in spite of its beauty very closely approximates its namesake.

Possibly the most unique sight of the entire trip is the "punk tree" with a chamois colored bark which looks like several hundred clean chamois skins wrapped around the trunk of a tree. Passing one's hand over this unusual bark one finds that the similitude reaches even to the touch. Smoother if anything than chamois, this tree proves a distinct surprise to the beholder.

A towering palm tree from South America from which the slender reeds used as blow guns by the natives for their poison darts is fashioned, has sprouted up amazingly since it was transplanted from its original setting four years ago. Forty feet in four years is quite a leap even in this garden of startling growths. The trunk of this tree is hollow and is used for irrigation purposes in South America. Many pipe lines in Ecuador are formed from the trunk of this remarkable tree.

The superbly trained guides will reveal enough material to fill several books in your round of the garden without chanting all of the scientific names of the countless specimens in your ear unless you especially ask for them. This is an innovation in the survey of botanical gardens which will be appreciated by the beauty loving visitor who does not care to have an endless stream of meaningless scientific jaw-breakers moistly sprayed in his or her ear while they are trying to enjoy the view.

It is utterly impossible to treat every marvel encountered in the tour separately but of the many sights noted one cannot neglect to mention the Ylang Ylang, a perfume tree whose flowers furnish a scent which permeates the air for a great distance and an oil that can be used commercially for perfume; cotton trees which the gardens are experimenting with; a compass tree whose branches grow in geometrical precision pointing toward the four points of the compass; kapok trees, whose slender limbs produce a cucumber like fruit called kapok and is developed and used commercially; the roots of this tree branch out from the trunk at such heights that they are used in South American colonies as stalls for the animals: the Mexican salad fruit tree whose fruit tastes like pineapple, strawberries and bananas combined, bamboo sprouts which grow to a height of 40 feet in 6 weeks and eventually attain the dizzy eminence of 100 foot stalks; the largest collection of water lilies found in one garden in the entire world; and the natural artesian wells used to water the garden, whose waters never vary from 70 degrees the year around.

To the thorough investigator, who is not satisfied with a casual inspection of the gardens, a conversation with Mr. Waldo E. Sexton, the guiding light of this temperamental collection of rare importations, discloses a background of thoughtful intelligent management, unusual enterprise in securing the many species of rare plant life and, a very interesting philosophy concerning the countless introductions of rare plants, trees and flowers. To quote Mr. Sexton, "We have here a melting pot similar to the absorption of the foreign element in our nation. Of the many importations we introduce into the garden, some fall by the wayside, just as a percentage of the immigrants entering our country find the climate, the environment or perhaps the tempo of the life they find here unsuited to their peculiar talents or disposition. Most of the rare exotics transplanted into our garden, due to the unusual fertility of the soil found here not only hold their own after joining us but in many instances develop phenomenally into far more luxuriant specimens than they were in in their native setting. Here again we may follow our veri-similtude, for, most of the enterprising souls who arrive in this country flourish amazingly in their new environment.

Dr. Diels of the Berlin Botanical Gardens, one of the greatest bontanists of the world, gave me quite a let down for a second when he accosted me after going through the gardens. The doctor told me very frankly that we had nothing that he had not seen before, but added that it had been necessary for him to travel for twenty-five thousand miles to view the exhibits separately which he had just witnessed collectively in several hours."

"Naturally," continued Mr. Sexton, "praise of this sort is heart warming, but a good many of our visitors find the natural beauties of glade and forest, which we have tried very hard to preserve intact, of even more interest than the exotics we have combed the world far and wide to add to our collection. We have tried to blend the virgin with the cultivated and many of our friends and visitors feel that we have succeeded."

Mr. Sexton divulged the enormous expense involved in cutting this wonder spot out of the jungle and cultivating the incomparable gardens. Over one hundred thousand dollars was spent initially and the expenses incidental to preservation of the rare flora run into sizable figures. Mr. Sexton is endeavoring to make the gardens self sustaining and this season his efforts have met with signal success.

The traveler who has just completed the tour of the gardens will not altogether agree with Mr. Sexton. While the soil here is unquestionably unusual in its fertility a great deal of the credit for the marvelous blending of wild and cultivated beauty must go to the enterprising superintendent and his staff which includes one of the foremost authorities on plant life, "wizard of the garden," Mr. Jens Hanson. In the opinion of this observer intelligent supervision and expert assistance have contributed largely to making this spot the most beautiful and complete horticultural show in the world.

In going over the manifold beauties of the garden in retrospect it is difficult to decide whether the remarkable jungle

Fairly teeming with the plant life of the jungle, the gnarled branches of the live oak trees spread their age old limbs over the placid pools of the jungle gardens

The delicate fragility of the clusters of water lilies blending with the soft green of the lily pads make this scene one of rare delicacy and charm growth with its acres of impenetrable and mysterious depths has interested us to a greater or lesser degree than the rare collection of marvels which have been gathered from the ends of the earth for the delectation of the visitor. Possibly we will never be able to decide, for certainly the collection is the most complete on earth and just as certainly the wild natural growth ranks with the scenic wonders of the world.

It is impossible to envision the combination of wild savanna and artistically designed landscape gardening which the staff of this wonder spot have blended with their genius. True, as Mr. Sexton stated, every single specimen of rare and exotic plant life in the garden will be found elsewhere in the world, but the cost of viewing each and every exhibit in the garden in its natural setting or even in the various bontanical gardens of the world would be stupendous.

Travelers who have seen the various plants of the garden in the four corners of the earth are continually asking for the genial superintendent of the gardens, to compare notes and speak of the remarkable skill shown in transplanting the delicate flowers and trees. Invariably their most noticeable reaction is one of amazement at the startling growth which the exotics have displayed in their new environment. Botanical wizards from all over the world have expressed their wonder at the exquisite welding of the virgin and the cultivated which they have been priviliged to witness.

Years ago when Mr. Arthur McKee purchased the virgin tract of land which is the present site of the gardens, his first step after as thorough an inspection as the jungle growth would permit was the cutting of paths through the acres of almost impenetrable undergrowth. Gradually as his friends joined him in exploring the property, he conceived the idea of adding to the unusual beauties of the wild growth by importations of beautiful exotics from other parts of the world. The acquisition of the present wizard of plant life in the garden, Mr. Jens Hanson, was Mr. McKee's initial step in developing the natural loveliness of the jungle and introducing and propagating new forms of what Mr. Sexton terms plant immigrants.

In persuading Mr. Waldo Sexton, his friend and advisor, to take charge of blending the tropical savanna with the rare importations which he had already started to introduce Mr. McKee has done a service of inestimable value to the student of horticulture and the lover of the beautiful.

The students of curiosa of the "Believe it or not" trend of thought and the more serious delvers into the botanical field of research finds as many natural subjects for study in the garden in one day as they could possibly discover by traveling for a solid year through the garden spots of the globe.

India, the Amazon, China, Australia and all the countries of the earth have contributed toward forming this modern Eden. One leaves the marvelous display with the feeling that a trip around the world has been completed without having to include the odors and discomforts connected with foreign travel.

NASSAU

SEVERAL celebrites are enjoying vacations at the British Colonial. Joseph Hergesheimer, noted author, who wrote a series of vignettes on Palm Beach Society life for the Saturday Evening Post, is here for the season. Possibly he will write a series with Nassau as the background.

Lambert entertained for her last evening aboard the "Aloma" at cocktails. Among those in the party were, William F. Ladd and daughter, Miss Elinor Ladd, Everett Fabian, Dwight Fiske and Hazzard Short. Mr. Fiske and Mr. Short will be here until the end of the month when they will go to Palm Beach. Miss Groody will pass part of the winter there.

MIAMI

THE SOUTH'S social season hurries on toward new peaks this week as many diversified interests occupy members of the colony.

Bridge players are busy with practice tournaments in preparation for the World Bridge Olympic which will be held in the lounge of the Miami Biltmore on February 4. Sixteen famous bridge experts have prepared 16 hands, which will be played in tournaments all over the world simulta neously. The correct playing of each hand has been decided upon by a committee and instead of each player being scored against an opponent, he or she will be scored against par. Last year 65 countries participated in the Olympic and this year 7 have entered. There will be an international prize, a national prize for each country, and the winners in each state and section will win prizes.

Mrs. M. Applegate Archer has been selected by the Committee, as game captain. She will supervise the playing of the games which will begin at 8:01 February 4.

Hands also will be played on six gigantic ocean liners en route to distant points on the high seas and the motion picture colony will be represented by 64 prominent screen actors and actresses. Already five hundred more Chinese players have enrolled than last year.

Among the prominent players who have registered for the Olympic here are Baron Waldemar Von Zedwitz, world famous player and J. Patrick Dunne, Miami's champion blind bridge player.

Sweet charity will provide the underprivileged babies of the community with milk from the proceeds of the Helen Lee Doherty Milk Fund Ball which will be given on February 20 at the Miami Biltmore Country Club.

This is the third year the ball, which was started by Miss Doherty, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, has taken place. A group of young girls in costume selling trays of flowers will lend atmosphere to the function which will be attended by distinguished guests from many parts of the country. Fortune tellers in gypsy costumes, sweetmeat bazaars and punch concessions will swell the Milk Fund.

RONEY PLAZA CABANA SUN CLUB

The new Cafe de la Paix at the Roney Plaza Cabana Sun Club is proving one of the resort's most popular spots.

Bridge circles at Miami Beach are looking forward to the Roney-Plaza Trophy for the bridge Championship of Southern Florida, which will be held the first two weeks in March. Mrs. Christine Smith, who is bridge hostess will be in charge. This will be the first time the cup will be award for the championship which will be an annual event.

Informality marks the daytime activities of the resort. Groups dining at the Gay Cafe, with tables beside the pool of the Miami Biltmore, viewed an impromptu show this week when the Peerless Potters, aerial acrobats, practice stunts for their Sunday pool show performance. Quentin Reynolds, associate editor of Collier's, lunched with Nancy Carroll.

Helen Hicks and Patty Berg, prominent women golfers, lunched together after a game. Miss Hicks wore a coral wool sports suit and red-haired Miss Berg wore a tailored skirt and shirt, topped with a brown felt sports hat. Maureen Orcutt Crews, who joined them, wore a blue and brown outfit.

Among the others lunching under sun umbrellas were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rand, Jr., of New York and J. H. Rand, Sr., of North Falmouth, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson of Columbus, Ohio; Ford C. June of Joilet, Ill.; John F. Gill of New York; Oscar Adel of Detroit, Mich.; and Dr. Kenneth Kelley of Chicago, Ill.

Winter resorters here have become enthusiastic over badminton, one of England's favorite lawn games. Grantland Rice, famous sportsman, who stopped here for a short while recently, is a devotee of the racquet and shuttlecock.

Mrs. Roof Gilson, the former Georgia Coleman, was complimented with a birthday party in the main dining room of the Miami Biltmore this week by her husband, who assisted her in receiving the guests. Leonard Dodson and Mr. and Mrs. John Revolta were among those invited.

The leading actresses and actors at the Miami Playhouse were especially honored guests at the tea dance in the patio of the hotel last Saturday. Frances Starr, Violet Heming, Laurette Taylor, Blanche Ring, Stiano Braggiotti, John Boyd and A. J. Herbert were among the guests seated at tables around the circular floor.

Fraternity and sorority groups of the University of Miami have been completely won by the music of Buddy Rogers and his orchestra which they heard last week at a tea dance given by the University, in the palm gardens of the Roney-Plaza.

Walter Winchell, famous columnist, is a guest of the Roney Plaza.

The other guests at the tea dance included Mrs. L. L. Paper of St. Paul, Minn., and her daughter, Miss Mary Paper, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. O'Conner of Toledo, O., Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Coral Gables social life has been accentuated by the arrival of many northern visitors who have come to spend the winter. Mrs. Minna Borchert and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Borchert, and grandson Dr. Paul Borchert who graduated from Marquette University in Wisconsin last year, have motored down from their home in Milwaukee and taken a house for the winter at 541 Alhambra Circle.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richie of Chicago have come to spend the season at their winter home, 222 Sidonia Ave. Noel Chamberlain, widely known landscape architect of New York is visiting Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Montgomery at their estate in Old Cutler Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Henderson have arrived from Detroit, Mich., to spend the winter at 1225 Valencia Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Eldredge have just moved into their new home at 701 North Greenway drive in Coral Gables.

Others who have come to join the winter colony at Coral Gables, are Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Laack and their daughter, Miss Anita Laack of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Ruth S. Johnson of Rochester, New York, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Lyman Seely.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Young of Springfield, Ill., entertained several times last week with parties for their friends here from Springfield. Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stephens, A. O. Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Redlich, all of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bonifield, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Lowe of Atlanta, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McCabe of Rockford, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Burnett of Waco, Texas.

Blondes, like the government, have gone off the gold standard.

Given impetus by Jean Harlow, who has forsaken her platinum locks and June Knight, who is letting her hair return to its natural brown, the movement here is definitely swinging toward darker shades. A new note of naturalness is predominant here with brown-tressed heads more in evidence than in many seasons past. Blondes, long the envy of their dark-haired sisters, are turning the tables while appearing in dyed locks which approach a deep mahogany.

Lavender, blue and green shades, decreed by Paris, are blissfully ignored in Southern resorts, usually the first to foster bizarre styles.

The one color, however, that is not permissible is gray. Changing the color of the hair is as casual to a woman today as putting on a new shade of lipstick. ENTERTAINING FOR THE SEASON AT THE

UNDER THE STARS

THE gala dinner dance given on Saturday night at the Patio ushered in the County Road restaurant's formal season. The function was attended by a representative gathering of colonists who were regaled with one of the finest bills of entertainment ever offered in the resort.

Making his initial appearance as an entertainer here, the songs of Georges Metaxa, singing star of "Cat and the Fiddle" received an ovation. Internationally known for the inimitability of his presentations, his program received encore after encore. Frances Maddux, who appears in Palm Beach for her second season, offered her Chanson Intime to an audience which noisily demonstrated its appreciation.

Arthur Brown, who has entertained in Palm Beach for the past nine seasons, appeared on the program in a group of songs. Val Ernie and His Continentals presented a program of dance music and incidental entertainment which won new laurels for the organization.

The present entertainment program of the Patio is one of a series of three, each to continue for a three-week period. The artists to appear on the next program are of prominence equal to that of those now appearing.

CY DELMAN AND HIS KENTUCKIANS AT WHITEHALL

Plans for the annual Fashion and Jewel Show to be held at the Patio on February 19th are rapidly nearing completion. It will be one of the most ambitious efforts ever planned for an event at the Patio. It will be remembered that the seating capacity at last year's ball was sold out long ahead of the date of the event, and an equally large attendance is expected this year.

The outstanding social event of the past week at the Colony Club was the third annual President Roosevelt Birthday Ball held last Thursday night. Proceeds were distributed on the basis of seventy percent to local charities, the remainder being donated to the National Council for Infantile Paralysis Research.

A brilliant throng from the cottage colony and the hotels attended the event, which was sponsored by a notable list of colonists. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams, Captain the Rt. Hon. Frederick E. Guest and the Hon. Mrs. Guest, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Guest, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sanford, Major and Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, Dr. Edmund LeRoy Dow, Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff, Mr. and Mrs. William McMaster Mills, Miss Ruby Edna Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Homer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard, Jr.

There was also a large attendance at the weekly Saturday night gala dinner and supper dances at the Colony Club last Saturday. The two orchestra arrangements at the Colony Club is proving unusually popular, offering continuous dancing and entertainment from cocktail time until closing. During the cocktail hour Pedro and His Siboney Orchestra play the rhumba tempo which gained for them instant popularity. They also play standard time and tangoes. The Ernie Holst Orchestra, here for its eighth season, plays during the dinner hour. During supper the Holst Orchestra and the Siboney Orchestra alternate.

Another innovation at the Colony Club this season which is proving unusually popular is Arthur's Round Table. Nightly this table is the gathering place for some of the colony's most interesting visitors, including members of society, the arts, the stage and politics. The table accommodates anywhere from ten to sixteen guests who drop in during the evening, dine, chat a while and on their departure are replaced by others.

The Whitehall Cocktail Lounge and the Lakeside Terrace continue favorite places for late afternoon and before-dinner entertainment. Cy Delman and His Kentuckians add daily to their popularity as one of Palm Beach's favorite orchestras.

The new orchestra shell on the west side of the dance floor has performed wonders in the line of acoustic properties. The terrace is one of the most colorful spots in Palm Beach, especially at sunset.

Incidental entertainment is by Walter De Soto and Eve Young playing the harp and violin. Their daily programs are always received with acclaim. Every afternoon there may be seen here many important members of the cottage colony with large and small parties of guests.

Jardin Bijou is setting a new vogue in cocktail hour dining with its hot hors d'oeuvres, prepared under the personal direction of Mr. Louis Cantone. These delicacies are epicurian delights and are very popular with sportsmen and other members of the cottage and hotel colonies who drop in this quaint old inn for cocktails after an afternoon of sports, and preceding dinner.

This exclusive Worth Avenue restaurant enjoys the patronage of a large clientele from Palm Beach social circles. Its atmosphere of Old France and its tropical patio, softly illuminated at night appeal to the discerning visitor with an eye for beauty and an appreciation of good food.

Jardin Bijou is always beautiful, but it is particularly so during the late supper hour, long past midnight when the moon appears to be sleepy, and tropical dew glistens upon the flowers and foliage in the patio. This statement may seem to be an exaggeration to strangers, but Palm Beach nights are as enticing as the sunlit hours, and residents of the resort always enjoy them.

One of the popular features of Jardin Bijou this year is the Edward Mayhoff orchestra, which played during the late fall season at the Westchester Embassy Club. Mr. Mayhoff is a Yale graduate and his timely and tuneful dance melodies attract many guests who demand zest in their music.

Mrs. Glenn Hodges entertained a group of friends Saturday evening at dinner. Her table placed on the porch of the loggia over looking the patio was decorated with tropical flowers and ferns. Mrs. Hodges' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Mr. and Mrs. D. Dulaney Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Stanton Bader, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Salisbury, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mrs. Hart Deming, Mrs. Hobart Endicott Warren, Compte Serge Fleury, Mr. A. Atwater Kent and Mr. George Singer.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Post drove up from Miami for luncheon and enjoyed dining in the sunlight. Mr. Langdon is housing commissioner of the state of New York.

Several guests of The Breakers had luncheon at Jardin Bijou earlier in the week. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Schmidt and Dr. Henry Nietert.

Others dining in the patio this week were Mrs. Ernest H. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs S. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Betts, Mr. John La Roche, Mrs. Irving Roe, Mrs. Florence Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. John Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. George Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scholtz.

SONG OF THE REEL

MORE interest is being shown in sailfishing this season in Palm Beach than at any time previous, due to the abundance of these fighting game fish in their natural feeding grounds off-shore and to the fact that the Silver Sailfish Derby has provided opportunity for interesting competition among resorters who are striving for the honor of landing the longest or heaviest fish of its type.

Sailfish catches reached an all-time high recently in Palm Beach waters when more than 100 specimens were brought alongside, with the majority of them being turned loose after the sport of catching them was over.

This is the largest number ever landed in one day in the waters of the Gulf Stream, although more than 80 were landed in one day last year.

With one of the largest fleets of crack fishing boats in the world quartered at Palm Beach, manned by pilots who have been fishing this section for years, the angler has an excellent opportunity for getting a thrill of a lifetime out of landing a huge sailfish, marlin, or other variety of game fish.

Mrs. Thomas R. Cowell, well known resort resident, brought in the first large sailfish entered in the Derby measuring 8 feet, 2 inches, winning a gold button. They were out aboard the Miss Sally with Capt. Walt Githens from the Poinciana basin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bedford of Belleport, L. I., also had an enjoyable day's fishing, Mrs. Bedford landing a sailfish 6 feet, 6 inches in length. They were out aboard the Black Hawk from Poinciana basin.

Capt. Cecil Boyd Rochefort landed a sizable sailfish measuring 7 feet, 5 inches which gave him an interesting fight before it was finally brought to gaff. Accompanying him was Mrs. Leonard Thomas and Mr. B. Bogart of New York. They also brought in a large number of blue fish.

Mr. Arthur Hudson Marks, Mr. Jerry Hilborn of London, Mr. William Watts of Palm Beach and Mr. J. L. Reynolds of New York spent an afternoon in the Gulf Stream with Mr. Marks landing a sailfish measuring 7 feet, 51/2 inches.

Prince and Princess Otto von Bismarck and Sir Alfred Beit, house guests of Mrs. Harrison Williams, were successful at sailfishing recently, Prince Otto landing one measuring 8 feet, 4 inches and duplicating his catch with one measuring 8 feet, one-half inch. Both were gold button fish and he received certificates from the West Palm Beach Fishing Club as to his catch. Sir Alfred Beit also brought in a sizable one, while the Princess was an interested onlooker. They were out aboard the Cheerio with Capt. Ray R. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Dolge of Westport, Conn., had a successful fishing trip, Mrs. Dolge landing a large sailfish, a bonita and several kingfish. Mr. Dolge also brought in a sailfish, two kings and a jack.

Mr. Harry Rosenfeld, dean of resort anglers, and Mr. Edwin Goodman, hooked 12 sailfish recently and brought in seven on a brief excursion in outside waters. Mr. Goodman landed three, the largest of which was 8 feet, one-half inch, while Mr. Rosenfeld brought in four, the largest, 7 feet, $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant McQuillen of Brookline, Mass., who are season guests in Palm Beach and have hunted and fished throughout the world, got an unusual thrill when they landed both a sailfish and a shark on the same line.

Mrs. McQuillen had already landed two measuring about $7\frac{1}{2}$ feet and was about to bring a third alongside when a shark rose from the depths and took the "sail." In some manner the shark got hooked and after playing him for some time, the feminine angler succeeded in bringing them both to gaff. The shark measured 12 feet.

Mr. McQuillen landed three large sailfish, one measuring almost 8 feet. They were out with Capt. Herman Gray, Jr., aboard the Baby Orca.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs Cunningham, of Greensboro, Conn., who are members of the resort colony, with Miss E. K. Cunningham and Miss Reba Kendall all had a successful day's angling, landing eight sailfish and each one bringing in one or more.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham each landed one, Miss Lucy Cunningham brought in two and Miss E. K. Cunningham landed three, while Miss Reba Kendall brought in a large specimen measuring 7 feet, 6 inches. They were out aboard the Fun with Capt. Ken Foster from Poinciana basin.

Bishop James R. Ryan, of Omaha, and Monseigneur C. A. McCue vicar general of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, also had fine fishing in their brief cruise off Palm Beach. Bishop Ryan landed a large sailfish while Monseigneur McCue brought in two large specimens. They were out with Capt. Rudy Steinhauser aboard the Blackjack from Poinciana basin.

OPEN JANUARY FIRST

> Overnight from Miami

Florida, or two hours by daily airliner. Direct ships from Halifax, Boston and New York. For literature, hotel reservations, etc., address British Colonial Booking Director, 521 Fifth Avenue (Suite 2421-25), New York, N. Y.

OU see it first when your ship approaches the island of New Providence, when the bright Bahaman sun picks out the roofs and spires of old Nassau, the white beaches and the grim forts on the hills beyond. You see it there, just inside the harbour entrance, a great hotel rising from the palms of a garden estate that touches the changing blues and greens of the tropic waters.

This is the British Colonial, center of the smart resort-life that has made Nassau a British Riviera

The pleasures of your tropical holiday here include the comforts and Continental cuisine of this famous hotel . . . swimming in pool or surf, golf on a seaside course, yachting (with anchorage and landing at the hotel), tennis, horse racing, polo, deep-sea fishing . . . the varied interests of Nassau, from its gayety of night life to the fun of shopping for London and Paris imports.

Travel Service

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

South America has an allure that is irresistible—its fascinating background of legend and history, its superlative scenery, its gay and cosmopolitan social life weave the web that holds us with enchantment. Vibrant modern cities contrast with the historic slumberous towns founded by Pizzaro four hundred years ago; great cathedrals stand in regions of aboriginal heathenism; the bustling ports of today are not far from the ancient Inca cities; there is the fascinating Carnival at Rio to delight one this month.

One can plan a long trip or a short trip—a cruise or an air tour—see much or little—enjoy the famous cities or the mighty mountains.

Ask Mr. Foste what to see and how to see it —trips planned, descriptive literature supplied, reservations made. There is never any charge for our service and no fees are ever accepted.

T MEANS a great deal that the young people of America have swung wholeheartedly over to Buick as the stand-out "buy" of the year.

For young folks have an instinct that leads them to what's what in motor cars as surely as a setter's nose guides him to quail!

The new Buicks call clearly to youth—they were designed to—in the lean, clean, sleek look of them—in the exuberant vitality of their thrilling performance.

And from the outset, from the first glimpse, youth took them to their hearts — and voiced an enthusiastic vote for a modern car that's good to look at and sweet to handle as well as being aerodynamically right.

Maybe it takes an oldster's background to appreciate Buick engineering history — the sense of the great valve-in-head engine's straight-line combustion, of mastering vibration by precision instead of smothering it with rubber, of a power-shaft that leaves springs free to cradle the car.

But, give these youngsters a chance and they'll ferret out these and a dozen other good reasons why Buick is a better engineering buy than anything else at or near its price.

But, unless they want to, they don't have to go that deep! They know from its feel, from its manner, from its serene arrogant sureness in traffic snarl or on the open road that Buick is buoyantly able, eager, durable and dependable beyond match.

So, when you look at the four lines, four sizes, that make up the 1936 Buick offering, take the younger members of your family along. They'll help you pick the one that fits your purse and purpose.

LINCOLN-ZEPHYR

V-12

The new twelve-cylinder car by Ford and Lincoln . . . new in beauty, new in performance, new in value in its field

In the new car is the Lincoln tradition to build for quality without regard to price, and the Ford facility to give great value at a price. The new car is built in its own specially equipped division of the Lincoln plant by men trained for years in the Lincoln's famous precision methods.

The Lincoln-Zephyr offers new ideas of beauty. Its streamlining is more pronounced, and more graceful, than the public has seen before. But smooth, flowing lines in this case are of vastly greater meaning than the "cut" or "fashion" of a car. Just as in the steel bridge, light in weight but great in strength, steel trusses determine the svelte curves of the Lincoln-Zephyr body, and make possible its rigid strength. Body and frame are one, welded together. The body, like the bridge, rests on abutments, the front and rear springs.

Inherent in this construction, besides new safety, is new comfort. The wheelbase is 122 inches, the springbase 133 inches. Passenger weight is poised between the axles and cushioned by soft, transverse springs. The center of gravity is extremely low. Passengers step directly into the car, without the assistance of running boards. Gone from motoring in the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR are the disagreeable "up-and-down" motions, the jolts that annoy passengers on a short trip and tire them thoroughly on a long one. The car rides gently with one passenger or with six. There is no "back-seat" ride.

In the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is new performance. The engine has twelve cylinders. It is of the V-type, proved so successful in the Lincoln and the Ford cars. It develops 110 horse-power, and is so powerful, in relation to car and passenger weight, that it sweeps along without sign of effort. It offers new alertness, new flexibility.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR offers new value and new economy in its field. A car of its size, forward-looking design and power could not be sold at a medium price did it not share all the combined Ford and Lincoln engineering experience, manufacturing ability and economic resources. It contains nothing experimental.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is new to the eye and the mind. Discover this fact for yourself in our showrooms! . . . It is new in performance and comfort. Discover this fact on the roads!

PALM BEACH CLUB ACTIVITIES

SCATTERED throughout the world one finds gathering centers of the socially prominent where one attraction or another is spectacularly featured for the delectation of the distinguished group who are making this particular spot their temporary headquarters.

Few of the exclusive Spas have such a diversification of attractions to offer its guests as the Palm Beach of today. Not content to present one or two superlative forms of entertainment for their ultra exclusive colony, the smart clubs of the resort are featuring almost every form of sports activities imaginable.

Combining the polo atmposhere of Meadowbrook with the golf background of Southern Pines and the grand tennis facilities of Forest Hills, Palm Beach has taken the best features of the leading sports centers separately and incorporated them collectively into a superior representation.

While most resorts feature tournaments in which the resorters themselves take no active part, Palm Beach is noted for marvelous facilities which the guests of the colony prefer to use themselves instead of enjoying vicariously. Possibly the only outstanding sports event which features outside participants is the Southeastern polo tournament scheduled to be held at Phipps Field in the near future. And even here you will find the contestants to be mostly of the Palm Beach colony.

No thundering herds trample the flowers dotting the border of the fairway or tear up chunks of turf with their sharp heels on the exclusive Seminole Golf course. Here one finds a course which compares favorably with finest of the courses generally used as a setting for the National tournaments. However the tricky hazards and cleverly constructed fairways do not feature ambitious tournaments featuring top flight stars.

While the less discriminating members of the clubs which are catering to the nationally known stars sit around grumpily waiting for the course to be available, these gentlemen stage their own tournaments in which the veriest novice can derive as much enjoyment as the shot maker who breezes around in the seventies and eighties.

The Tombstone tournament and Optional Sweepstakes held every Sunday afternoon at the Seminole brings out a representative gathering of contestants and spectators, who enjoy the ingenuous contests tremendously. Lunching at the club house after the games recently Mr. and Mrs. Jay O'Brien entertained their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Chaqueneau, Mr. Lytle Hull and Mr. Jack Heminway.

Luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, Jr., at one of the gay parties noted in the club house were Mrs. John C. O. Marriott and Mr. Terence Phillips.

Mr. Lammot du Pont entertained Mr. and Mrs. George P. Edmonds, Mr. Charles Warner, Jr., and Mrs. C. Prevost Boyce in a cozy corner of the club where a splendid view of the incoming golfers could be obtained.

Prince Kyriel Scherbatoff and Miss Phyllis Bourne were the guests of Mrs. Vadim Stefan Makaroff at another of the intimate little luncheons noted in the dining room.

One of the largest of the luncheon parties was given by Mrs. Alexander McKay, who had Mr. and Mrs. Julius Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Major, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howland Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Worwick.

The splendid personnel of the club and excellence of the cuisine contribute toward the popularity of the luncheons featured by the Seminole. The dining room during the afternoons is almost as colorful and animated as the fairways of the golf course.

Another party of socialites enjoying luncheon was comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Louis F. Bader, who were hosts to a party of five of their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fuller, Mrs. Frederick S. Fish, Miss Elizabeth Pearson and Mr. Philip Giddens were their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Stafford entertained Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ehrhart, Mrs. J. Ennis McQuail, Mrs. Robert Bennett, Mrs. Edward Grace and Miss Elsie Dermott at luncheon recently after one of the tournaments.

Also forming a pleasant gathering were Mrs. Henry Morgan Tilford, Mrs. Hunt S. Wagstaff and Mr. John R. Taylor.

With the splendid duo attractions of polo and golf to stimulate the interest of the members and guests of the Gulf Stream Club the beautiful sea side castle which houses the carefree gathering of sports enthusiasts finds itself the center of a gay throng of socialites.

Tentative plans for the Southeastern Championship tournament, to be held at the adjacent Phipps Field soon, occupy many of the polo fans who are looking forward to witnessing some competition of international calibre. The outcome of the tournament to be held here will have a bearing on the choice of team to be selected for the international cup games at Meadow Brook in the spring.

Palm Beach will be ably represented in the Florida and Georgian quartettes. Prince Mdivani heads the hard riding Georgians with Cyril Harrison, E. S. Hopping and William Tevis as his fellow players. Stephen "Laddie" Sanford will lead the Florida team. Mike Phipps, J. H. Phipps and W. T. C. Guest comprise the balance of Sanford's outfit.

Expected to compete in the Florida tournament will be the famous Aurora team comprised of Seymour Knox, number one of the combine; J. P. Mills in number two position; Elbridge T. Gerry riding three and I. G. Bostwick taking the place of the former back of the team, William Post II.

The Auroro team has been among the most interesting teams of recent years. In 1935 they won both the open and the Waterbury tournaments.

Cecil Smith and W. G. Reynolds, the hard riding westerners who have flashed such spectacular play since their arrival here, will be aided by C. B. Wrightsman and R. S. Bullock in forming the Texas team.

Possibly the most colorful of the top flight players scheduled to play in the south-eastern tournament is the high ranking Winston Guest who carries a nine goal handicap, one of the three nine goal men in the World. Second only to the dashing Winston is Cecil Smith rough rider extraordinary who can be depended upon to flash some spectacular polo in every game in which he participates. Stephen "Laddie" Sanford, whose record of triumphs in England last Summer with his Continental line-up cannot be ignored, is a player whose best efforts can be counted on in championship competition. While he always turns out a whirlwind game, first class opposition brings out that added spark which distinguishes his play in the leading tournaments.

BIRDS IN PALM BEACH

PALM BEACH, Florida, is one of the most noted resorts in the world, but there is one very interesting fact about it that perhaps is not known to many people.

It would no doubt surprise bird lovers, students and others to find that in the town of Palm Beach itself there are probably more birds per acre than in almost any other place, even including some bird sanctuaries.

A Rhode Island couple who spend the winters at their cottage in Palm Beach are authority for the above statement. Some years ago "Capt. Bill" decided to try to attract more birds to his yard so he built several bird houses and placed them on the trees, together with several kinds of bird feeders.

The Palm Beach property consists of a plot one hundred feet square, part of which is occupied by the house and garage, leaving as lawn space approximately 50 by 100 feet. In this small space eleven different species of birds have used the bird feeders at one time. About fifty birds call the lot their winter home, and some stay all through the year.

One pair of Cardinals has been coming to the yard for nesting purposes for the past ten years. They do not build in the boxes but build their nest in the hedge near the house windows. Here they have raised their broods with entire disregard of anyone nearby. "Rosy" and "Tony" as the Cardinals are called, are so tame that they will come to a feeder placed just a few inches from an open window,

All the comforts of parlor, bedroom and bath greet the fortunate occupants of the cottages in this little bird village.

-Mary Wright Pridham

while the Captain or his wife sit inside and talk to them.
One of the most interesting guests is the mockingbird
"Dumpty," so called because he is so fat and saucy. Why he should be fat is a mystery because he is eternally on the go. He and his mate build their nest in a bush right by the sidewalk where a passer-by, if he had sharp eyes, could see and reach in and touch the nest. Mockingbirds are very sociable and fond of human beings and Dumpty is no exception. With other birds who live on the lot Dumpty is on good terms, but woe to a strange bird who encroaches.
He has to fight for the privilege of food and lodging.

One time during the winter when robins were migrating to their winter home in South America, thousands of them stopped to feed on the berries on the palmetto trees in the yard. Poor Dumpty almost went crazy trying to chase them all away. One couple braved his wrath and stayed all winter.

Dumpty is very playful and mischievous. He will dart down on a dog or cat and pull hair out of their backs, apparently just out of deviltry. When the birds want to build a nest, they will come to the cottage where a supply of string cut into six inch pieces is slipped through the mesh of the screen door for them. Dumpty will take hold of a piece by one end and pull it out. Then he will catch it by the other end and by the middle so as not to get tangled in it and fly over to the nesting bush. The mockingbirds build a very sloppy looking nest, which looks each time as though it would not hold together until the baby birds are out of it but some way it always does.

HOME OF ROSY AND TONY ABOVE THE LIV-ING ROOM WINDOWS.

Flag pole Kelly has nothing on this sky minded family of birds who have constructed their exclusive penthouse at the very top of the slender tree.

"Tom" and "Kitty", a pair of red-bellied or zebra woodpeckers are probably the most interesting tenants, because they build in the boxes made for them, placed on the palmetto trees. They have five different nest boxes but will not let another bird of their own species come on the lot. Even when not nesting, Tom and Kitty come home every night to roost in their box.

Other interesting tenants are the Southern Crested Flycatchers or Yellowhammers. These birds usually nest in hollow trees or stumps six to forty feet above the ground, but they raise two sets of young in Palm Beach in the houses provided for them. Their nests are usually composed of dry cypress leaves, pine needles, grasses, moss, bunches of hair, bark, palmetto fiber and feathers. And for some reason evidently plain to them a flycatcher's nest always seems to contain pieces of cast-off snake skin. The flycatchers winter in South America but come back to Palm Beach in the early spring to raise their broods. They usually lay from four to six eggs. They are solitary in habit and seem to resent the presence of other birds near their nest. They rarely go back to their own nest without first making a quarrelsome dart at some other bird, usually the woodpeckers as they have the misfortune to be the nearest neighbors. However, as flycatchers' food consists mainly of flying insects, beetles, horseflies, stink bugs, cicadas leaf hoppers, grasshoppers, etc., they are very valuable additions to the bird colony.

It is particularly amusing to see how the steady tenants will "gang up" on a strange cat or hawk or screech owl. The owls are the special enemies as they steal the young birds out of the nests in the hedges, etc. The Captain has shot about half a dozen screech owls, ten or eleven sparrow hawks and one pigeon hawk. When such a "public enemy" is seen, the home birds begin a wild clamor. Their friends know the danger call and rush to the rescue. One early evening an owl sat on the wall behind the garage. It sounds unbelievable but it is really true that Dumpty and one of the other home birds flew back and forth chattering and scolding until Captain Bill came out with his gun, when they flew to the wall, one on each side of the owl and perched there while Captain Bill shot the owl. After he picked it up, the birds flew off about their business.

One day they were making a great clamor but after looking around the Captain could see nothing out of order. The birds kept it up, finally even pecking at the screen door. When he picked up his gun and went out in the yard, the birds flew ahead of him, leading him across the street to where a strange cat was hiding, watching the flicker's nest. When the cat was chased up the street, the birds settled down again.

Man made homes perched precariously on the precipitous trunks of cabbage palms attract the feathered denizens of the forest to the delights of suburban life in the tropics.

"Petey" the Catbird goes North to nest, but stays around his Palm Beach home all winter.

The pretty Painted Buntings are interesting to watch as they come to the feeders. They crack sunflower seeds to eat them, just as do the Cardinals.

The Blue Jays who live there are very playful and play tag with each other all over the yard.

One variety of bird the Captain has been unable to entice to his yard. In 1932 he built a house for purple martins which cost him more than $25 to build, but altho at times there are martins by the hundred at West Palm Beach and at Lake Worth, no one at Palm Beach seems able to secure them as tenants. One large estate has spent thousands of dollars building a pool in front of their martin house, trying to entice them there, but without success.

However the list of birds who do visit and live in the Captain's yard reads like pages from a bird book:

"Rosy" and "Tony", the Florida Cardinals (Richmonde'na Cardinalis Florida'na).

"Tom"and "Kitty", the red-bellied Woodpeckers (Centurus Carolinus) also known as Zebra Woodpecker and Orange Sapsucker.

"Dumpty", the Eastern Mockingbird (Mimus Polyglottos Polyglottos).

"Petey", the Catbird (Dumetella Carolinensis).

Painted Buntings, (Passerina ciris) also called Non-pareil.

Florida Blue Jays, (Cyanocitta cristate semplei).

Eastern Ground Doves, (Columbigallina passerina passerina) also known as Mourning Dove.

Red Headed Woodpecker (Mclanerpes erythrocephalus). Southern Crested Flycatchers (Myiarchus crinitus crinitus) also called Yellowhammer.

Southern Flicker (Colaptes auratus auratus) also called Highhole.

Yellow-bellied Sapsucker (Sphryrapicus varins).

House Wren (Troglodytes aedon) also called Jenny Wren.

BEACH PANORAMA

THE attractive ocean side clubs with their long sandy beaches, clear deep pools and attendant activities, provide many hours of pleasure for Palm Beach visitors who, once they have experienced a season of swimming and basking in the warm sunshine, come back year after year for more.

The Breakers Cabana Club is thronged with visitors on every bright day, loungers, strollers and cabana visitors coming from the cottages and hotels of the resort to enjoy the charming informality of beach activities or to stop for lunchcon at Gabrielles buffet on the terrace.

Among recent arrivals on Cabana Row is Mr. Harry Skillman, prominent Detroit clubman, who has been a winter resident at the Breakers for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paterno of New York, also Breakers guests for many seasons, are daily visitors at their cabana and have had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wetzler of New York, who were here on their wedding trip. Mr. Jack Paterno, who attends Riverdale Country School and Mr. Joseph Paterno, Jr., a student at the University of Virginia, will join their parents soon.

Senator and Mrs. J. M. Wilson of Montreal, Canada, well known resort residents, are new cabana holders and have with them every day their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brodeur, also of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Giannini of San Francisco, who have been coming to Palm Beach for almost 30 years, are frequently noted on the beach, and Mr. Giannini comes over for a plunge in the surf almost every day of the season.

Mrs. H. H. Culver of St. Louis, Mo., and her sister, Mrs. A. C. Allen of Evanston, Ill., are daily visitors at their cabana which they have engaged for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Lynn McNaughton have arrived to join the large Detroit contingent on the row, and their cabana is the scene of many delightfully informal gatherings during the week.

Governor James M. Curley of Massachusetts, and his daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, guests at Whitehall, have visited the beach frequently with a party of friends. A group of the younger sun-tan set who are daily visitors and enjoy the surf bathing and swimming in the pool, includes Miss Muriel Schoonmaker, Miss Jane Carroll, Miss years the popular bathing place of the elite of the hotel and cottage colony, its facilities now include a long row of private cabanas at the south of the pool.

Muriel Rudinger, Miss Barbara Welch, Mr. G. J. Chase and Mr. Dick Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. William MacNeill of Philadelphia are recent arrivals at the Breakers, and are usually members of a gay coterie down on the beach.

The Sea Spray Beach Club is the favorite haunt of many prominent Palm Beachites who make it a daily habit to visit there and find it a pleasant place to entertain their guests.

Noted there recently were Prince Serge Mdivani and Princess Louise Mdivani, who entertained Mrs. Elisha Dyer of Newport, and Mrs. McKenny Egerton of Baltimore, Md. and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Van Alen. Mrs. J. Ennis McQuail had as her guest Mr. F. A. Brady of Woodmere, L. I. and Mrs. Pardee Odman entertained Mrs. Twiggs McLeod of Philadelphia, Miss Babette Dione, Paris, Miss Dorothea Disston and Mr. William Disston of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Alexander Thompson of Waterbury, Conn. Mr. George H. Danforth was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Starr.

Taking membership in the club recently were Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings Lindop, Evanston, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dorbritz and Mrs. Maude Dorbritz, Chapel Manor, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Vernon, New York; Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart and Mrs. Harold B. Smith, Barrington, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schmidt, New York; Mrs. W. R. Betts, Syosett, L. I.; Mr. George Weber, New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. O. R. Baldridge, New York; Mr. and Mrs. O. Frank Woodward, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Thomas, Jr., Minneapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Murray, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Many of the artists and writers now in Palm Beach have made the Sun and Surf Club their headquarters while in the social colony. The imaginative artists who make up this aggregation find the colorful background an ideal locale for their diversified interests.

Among the artists and writers now registered at the club are Mr. Gene Forker, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Karn, Mr. and Miss Pat Randolph, Mrs. Maurice Horan, Miss Margaret Horan and Mr. Clarence Buddington Kelland, Mr. Arthur William Brown.

Judging from the speculative gleam in the versatile Kelland's eye as he prowled about the club watching the activities of the scintillating gathering, the eminent author and philosopher extraordinary is hatching a new plot. Palm Beach socialites will not be surprise if the unique Sun and Surf furnishes the inspiration for one of Mr. Kelland's incomparable commentaries on the contemporary life of today.

To the tippler who doesn't enjoy his pink elephants straight, the walls of the hilariously lithographed tap room at the Sun and Surf present a welcome diversion to the procession of pachyderms he is accustomed to witness. Cartoons which would wring a guffaw out of a stuffed shirt adorn every available spot in the cleverely conceived cocktail room and the imbiber who wishes to witness all of the sights generally associated with alcoholic tremors may do so without drinking anything harder than sarsaparilla.

FISHERMEN AND FISHING

WITH the annual Silver Sailfish Derby adding impetus to the "open season," on sailfish, those wily denizens of the sea seem to have sensed that a concerted effort is being made to track them to their lair and are becoming more wary than usual.

Although several hundred sailfish were landed during the week preceding the Derby, with many exceeding the button lengths of more than 8 feet, only two or three have been landed of that size since the Derby started.

Nevertheless, almost two hundred "sails" have been brought alongside in the past two weeks and anglers are having rare fun hauling them in.

Two gold button sailfish were landed recently in one day among the 40 taken, with Mr. W. G. Dewitt of Englewood, N. J., landing the daily prize with one measuring 8 feet 13/4 inches. Mr. Frank Bessler of New York also brought in one measuring 8 feet, three-quarter inches.

Richard Cox Cowell, 8-year-old son of Mrs. Thomas R. Cowell, who won the daily fishing award recently, landed a 7-foot "sail," unaided while out with Capt. Walter Githens aboard the Miss Sally from Poinciana basin.

Mr. Bryant McQuillan, well known sportsman from Brookline, Mass., took top place for trout recently in the winter fishing contest, entering a beautiful specimen of speckled trout weighing 12 pounds, 9 ounces, the largest caught around here for several years. Mr. McQuillen, who was fishing with Mrs. McQuillen, landed the unusually large fish at the mouth of the St. Lucie inlet. It was $32\frac{3}{4}$ inches long.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sexauer, of Larchmont, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. John Kadel, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., spent the afternoon in the Gulf Stream, with Mrs. Sexauer bringing in a sailfish 7 feet 5 inches in length. They were out with Capt. Mel Eldred aboard the Julian from Poinciana basin.

Mr. William Muller of New York City; Mr. William Buell, of Reading, Pa., and Mr. Frank Bressler, of New York City, caught a number of small game fish, including kings, dolphins, with Mr. Bressler landing a gray grouper weighing 40 pounds.

Mr. Thomas L. Chadbourne, well-known resort resident lost the daily prize by a nose recently when he landed a huge sailfish measuring 7 feet $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches, to find that at least seven inches of the bill had been broken off at some previous time in the sailfish's wanderings. With him were his daughters, the Misses Marjorie and Leila Chadbourne. They were out aboard the Cheerio with Capt. Ray Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Rea, of Palm Beach, had an interesting day of it, with Mrs. Rea landing a large sailfish measuring 7 feet 8 inches. Mr. Rea, chairman of the Sailfish Derby Committee, had one on that looked to be well over 8 feet when his hook broke and the fish got away. They were out aboard their Edorea 1V.

Mr. Jerome Hilborn, of London, in company with Mr. S. G. Alderson, of Kisumu, British East Africa; Mr. A. S. Barker, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Harry Rosenfeld, well-known resort angler, enjoyed an afternoon's fishing. Mr. Hilborn landed one measuring 7 feet $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, while Mr. Alderson brought in his initial sailfish measuring 6 feet 8 % inches.

Mr. Arthur Hudson Marks, in company with Mr. John Witman and Mr. J. L. Reynolds, of New York City, spent the day off the shore of Palm Beach, with Mr. Reynolds landing a sailfish measuring 7 feet 6 inches.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyons of Chicago, season guests at the Breakers, each landed a sailfish, Mrs. Lyons bringing in her first, measuring 7 feet 4 inches, and Mr. Lyons landing one 7 feet 1 inch in length. They were out with Capt. Rudy Steinhauser, aboard the Black-Jack, from Poinciana basin.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin F. Barry, of East Orange, N. J.; Mr. Edwin J. Barry, of South Orange, N. J., and Mr. James Conners, of New York City, guests at the Brazilian Court, all made a trip to the Gulf Stream with Mr. Barry, landing a "sail" measuring 7 feet $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches and weighing 45 pounds.

Fishing aboard Capt. Tom Jones' Miraamy from the basin was Mr. Wilkins J. Perkins, of Philadelphia, who landed a beautiful sailfish, measuring 7 feet 11½ inches.

Mrs. A. L. Staples, of Ogunquit, Maine, and Palm Beach, brought in a sailfish, measuring 7 feet 4 inches, while aboard the Marilyn S., Mr. Carl Mabee, of Palm Beach, landed one measuring 7 feet, 2 inches, while out with Capt. Jorgenson.

Mr. Thomas Benham, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., won the double prize for the day in the West Palm Beach fishing contest, landing a sailfish measuring 7 feet, 11 inches and weighing 66 pounds. Mr. Hunt Wagstaff, well-known Palm Beach resident, caught four sizable sailfish and released them, making a total of 60 sailfish he has returned while fishing here.

Miss Margarita Noble, of Greenwich, Conn., who is a guest at the Island Inn, Hobe Sound, also brought in one measuring 7 feet, $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches after a thrilling half hour's work.

MODES FOR GALA MOODS

THERE'S something about Palm Beach nights that calls forth a very feminine spirit in dress, easily forgotten in the radiant sunshine of day. At night under starry skies, when the moon rides high over the palm trees, when the trade winds blow gently and strains of inspiring music reach your ears, you feel a reckless urge to slip into your most alluring gown and find a place to dance.

For just such an important occasion, Madame Najla Mogabgab, whose Breakers Salon houses such a noteworthy collection of gorgeous gowns, suggests a gown of double net in royal blue, adorned with leaves of embossed taffeta. Two lovely red American beauty roses are tucked in at the waistline for a stunning contrast, and over it is worn a devastating directoire model coat in the same net with great fluffy sleeves, a tiny, standing collar and long reveres. If you don't succumb to that, you will when you see the cocktail gown created in the sheerest of black chiffon, shirred and crinkled in a captivating fashion. A great cluster of flowers fills in the low decolletage and you can't find a single fault with the smart jacket of padded lace that accompanies it.

Bronze silk net is a grand choice for the sun-tanned lady who wants to keep us wondering where the gown ends and she begins. Veritable clouds of net, three deep, billow about your feet and over your arms, and it's all-over punc-

"Palm Beach" a dream of a gown in sheer silk net and alencon lace. The bodice is softly draped in the front and the skirt has a slight train. Madame tuated with moons and crescents of golden sequins. The waist is tight to emphasize the fullness of the skirt and you'll find it at Turner's, Gowns, Worth Avenue. Then, to make it difficult to choose, they'll show you a perfect love of a gown. A Dolly Varden print scattered with pastel flowers on white taffeta. Not stiff, white taffeta, but the sort that whispers softly when you make your entrance. The skirt has a modified bustle in the back, perched above a lot of fullness and a little train, and the bodice is primly squared in front with low draped back.

If you're very sophisticated and lean toward black, by all means go to Bonwit Tellers and ask to see their gown of chiffon jersey (an exclusive importation.) You'll appreciate its elegance and restraint and recognize it as a style coup. The bodice is cut high across the front with the faintest suspicion of draping, and the back swoops down to the skirt, where sunburst gathers meet in a concerted fullness at the center. Wear with it Bonwit Tellers Capri sandal of black doeskin edged in gold, and an ermine cape and you'll have an evening to remember. For a more youthful gown, they have an exclusive model so ethereally lovely the first glimpse will leave you gasping for breathunless you are a hopeless stoic. Like drifting white mist over an English flower garden, countless yards of floating Palmetto cloth are thrown over a sheath of pastel print. Fluttering moth wing sleeves reach to the elbow and center shirring in the bodice gives softness over the bust. If you remember anything else but that vision of loveliness, it's perhaps the teasing, utterly delightful fragrance of Bonwit Teller 721, a perfume of their own blending.

A fragile, turquoise chiffon, simple and compellingly lovely, uses a girdle of satin oak leaves appliqued to the waist, for its only adornment. In the back the leaves extend just a short distance along the panel which gives fullness to the skirt. A new triumph in the bodice which you're sure to adore, is the surplice closing ending in ever widening wings of chiffon flowing over the shoulders. It's a Jay Thorpe original and they give you a few extra leaves to pin on your hair. If you haven't a thread lace dress you'll want one when you see the model shown at this smart shop, done in a vivid green. The bodice is fulled to a very narrow panel extending down the front, and the wide skirt has a facing of haircloth to give it substance and at the same time protect it from destructive heels. The very distinctive bertha worn over it is narrow in front to reveal the emerald-cut brilliants on the decolletage, and separates in back for exposure.

You'd never guess the significance of battleships and daisies unless you see Helen Heller's dark gray gown of sheer Palmetto cloth. The skirt swirls sinfully right from the start and the bodice holds a righteous cluster of daisies just above it and then inconsistently adds a frou-frou note with flared ruffles over the shoulders. If you want to march in the front of the fashion parade, Helen Heller advises you to dress like your escort does—in a dinner jacket. You'll love the shirt. It's white organza, pintucked in front, with shirt studs of rhinestones and an arrow collar of lace—no less. The long black skirt with pencil silhouette, has a slit in back hidden by a few box pleats, and the severe little jacket has a short pleated tail.

Your search for the new and unusual will be rewarded at Lilian O'Grady's shop on Worth Avenue, where she displays a gown of white organdy over black taffeta. A wide insert of old-fashioned embroidery moulds the hips and adds interest to the puffed sleeves. For a quaint, adorable touch the high neckline is gathered exactly like an infant's dress and ties in back with dainty strings of piping. All the exquisite workmanship in this gown is done by hand, and we forgot to mention a wide girdle and huge butterfly bow of black. Vivid flowers are planted boldly on dark ground to lend enchantment to a dinner gown shown at this same shop. Fullness is concentrated in the back of the skirt and the girdle ends in long tassels of jade green and wine-red.

Militarism in its most attractive aspect is presented in a gown at Fahda Jabaly on Palm Beach Avenue. Printed frogs march two abreast down the front of a blue marquisette redingote. Sleeves and hem are edged in a crisp, pleated frill, and a stitched band at the neck ties in a bow. The fullness is all in the back and the foundation is of printed crepe.

A striking new dance dress for tropical evenings, black scattered over with brilliant Malmaison carnations. The top skirt is net stiffened at the hemline with horse hair and the petticoat is of taffeta. Bergdorf-Goodman.

THE EVERGLADES CLUB

WITH the several ultra distinctive Clubs of the Palm Beach Colony displaying a most interesting and diversified program for the exclusive group who make up their roster, the social season has taken on unusual interest and charm.

Palm Beach has never entertained a more distinguished representation of guests and in turn has never been so splendidly equipped to entertain and amuse them. The rejuvenated beauty spot which is the Everglades Club, with its comprehensive environment of sports and social attractions presents a splendid program to its distinguished members and guests.

An atmosphere of celebration is predominant at the club where the newly formed organization has welded the marvelous facilities and attractions at their disposal into a compact whole which presents the appearance of a composite picture of the offerings of several exclusive clubs.

Numbering among their numerous advantages tennis courts second to none; a fine golf course right in the heart of the Colony, where the golfing socialites may enjoy nine holes in the morning, keep a luncheon engagement and play another nine in the afternoon without dashing about the country wildly in an attempt to keep many social appointments.

Located in the very heart of the social Colony the Everglades Club is a combination of top flight hostelry, exclusive sports club and beautiful social center.

A trip through the artistically conceived gardens and patios of the club reveals an old world atmosphere and charm startling in its authenticity.

One enters the club through cool high ceilinged hallways lined with fragrant flowers and cool green palms of infinite varieties. The lovely varicolor of the petunias, phlox, marigold, snap dragons and many other species of tropical flowers blend charmingly with the fresh green of the palms along the corridors.

The first of the patios encountered seems to have been transplanted bodily from some old Spanish monastery. Visitors find themselves listening for the strains of organ music and the voices of the friars chanting their litany. A huge tree sprawls its graceful limbs over walls of ancient appearance. The beautifully wrought grill work of the gates to the cloistered courtyards swing under unblievably antique columns apparently hoary with age.

Further down the corridor one finds a combination of Oriental splendor and the sunny charm of a setting in old Seville. The second patio encountered is enhanced by beautifully fashioned wrought iron lamps hanging from the ceilings which heighten the illusion of visiting an old Spanish monastery which has undergone the transition caused by many Moorish conquests during its life time.

On the right Moorish designed balconies crest graceful Corinthian columns with their serrated facade of trellissed balcony enhanced by the enormous fish-tail palms whose name so inaptly expresses their graceful beauty.

A glance to the left shows an uninterrupted vista through the cool hallway and the comfortable and distinctive interior of the music room of the club to an outdoor backbround of twisted banyan trees and feathery palms. Still further beyond a spirited game of tennis may be glimpsed through the trees which encircle the tennis courts.

ting introduction to the marvelous beauty of the Orange Garden.

Possibly no beauty spot in the world has been more written about than the Everglades Club and the Orange Gardens have invariably received the major portion of the eulogistic encomiums showered upon the uniquely conceived social center.

It is easy to understand the amazed delight of the visitor who dines in the lovely Orange Gardens. Here one may listen to the strains of soft music under orange trees whose russet colored fruit is no illusion. Around a sunken dance floor of mirror smoothness, stone steps lead up to a colorful expanse of old brick terrace whose faultlessly laid surface is dotted with innumerable orange trees so cleverely built around that they seem to grow from the very bricks.

All the beauties of a tropical setting are enhanced by the Venetian background of a Castle like structure on the other side of the lagoon whose walls and gondola landing are built on the very edge of the water. One suspects the management of the club of building this picturesque background especially for the enjoyment of its members.

A touch of Florentine delicacy is added to the tropical coolness of the white stone stairway by the daintily wrought beauty of the iron grille which follows the contours of the stone so beautifully.

In the evening when hidden lights of many colors cast their brilliant reflection upon the waters, sometimes revealing the spectral white of a passing yacht, the scene is one of indescribable beauty.

Cleverely concealed among the branches of the orange trees, orange colored lights brilliantly illuminate the trees. The entire garden is a masterpiece of indirect lighting. The trees, shrubbery and seawall conceal brilliant lights of every conceivable hue, producing a dream-like setting impossible to visualize.

The cocktail hour at the club finds many of the guests in the lovely setting of the gardens and in the bar watching the incredible Florida sunsets across the lagoon. Here they play backgammon, bridge or simply relax while the glowing disc of the sun produces its ever changing panorama of color.

Late this month when the orange blossoms flood the patio with their sweet scented beauty the garden attains its full blown loveliness.

In retaining the natural beauty of the grounds throughout the club, the artisans responsible for the landscaping have done a splendid piece of work. Originally the site of the old jungle trail whose marvels of tropical beauty many of the old timers will remember, the present ensemble of cultivated gardens and the wild natural beauty of the setting have been admirably blended into an unusually attractive background.

The massive beamed dining room off the orange garden is an authentically transplanted interior from an old Cathedral whose old world atmosphere is emphasized by the magnificent murals decorating the walls. Above age old panels whose century smoothed wood has been coveted by innumerable collectors, the destruction of the Spanish Armada has been pictorially depicted on an enormous scale. Only a Cathedral like structure as perfectly balanced as the club dining room could house the spectacular painting, which encompasses one whole wall, without being dwarfed by the immensity of the work.

THE FAMOUS GREENBRIER

WHEN the Englishman needs a rest he goes to Brighton. When the German wishes to recuperate he goes to Baden-Baden. But when the American needs to rest, relax, or know the full enjoyment of life he comes to The Greenbrier. And White Sulphur Springs, famous since 1778 continues to merit this constant choice.

Seven thousand acres situated in the Alleghany Mountains at an elevation of 1,925 feet—this is the vast country estate which makes The Greenbrier dominant.

During the Spring season, particularly, The Greenbrier conveniently provides all the facilities which assist people to build themselves up and eliminate all feeling of fatigue.

A vista of the celebrated Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, West Virg'.nia, where so many Palm Beach colonists stop en route from South to North. It is one of the world's most famous spas. On its 7000 acres are three golf courses, over 250 miles of bridal paths, polo fields, airport, championship tennis courts, indoor swimming pool, skeet courses and trapshooting ranges.

And the salubrious mountain climate of the Spring season combines with the complete medical facilities in aiding the restoration of robust health.

In the Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, The Greenbrier is in full operation and continues to be America's finest all-year resort. For those seeking recreation there is horseback riding along many miles of scenic trails which thread their way through the surrounding foothills. Excellent mounts may be obtained from a large stable of wellbred, seasoned Virginia and Kentucky horses and a corps of competent riding masters is always available. Golfers may enjoy the game on courses which rank among the finest of this country. The cozy log-cabin clubhouse at the complete skeet and trap course is a daily meeting place for the followers of this popular sport. Swimmers will find the mosaic-tiled swimming pool, located in the same wing as the Medical Department, one of the largest and most beautiful in the country. Every day its continuously flowing spring water is kept at an even temperature of 72 degrees. The pool is under the constant supervision of a swimming instructor. As for the huntsman, he will find an abundance of rabbit and quail and other small game near the estate, while within a few hours ride there are bear and deer to test his markmanship.

But it is not sportsmen alone who seek The Greenbrier's invigorating climate, for with its luxurious appointments, its perfection in comfort, service and convenience, it is the ideal place to visit for rest or recuperation.

Here is no noise of city, no traffic or other disturbing factor to cause annoyance. Yet, The Greenbrier does offer all the advantages of the city for, under one roof, it is a complete city in itself. There is a post office, brokerage office, Western Union office, cinema theatre, (with a new feature picture each day), in addition to a variety of attractive shops—all open daily for the convenience of our patrons.

Those guests who desire rest or recuperation may spend pleasant hours in the luxuriously furnished lounges of the Greenbrier where a chair before the great Georgian fireplace, a book from the library and the soft notes drifting from the organ room will create the peacefulness and tranquillity which bring relaxation or quick recovery. Tea is served in the magnificent colonial lounges during these daily organ recitals.

To hasten recovery or eliminate fatigue there is no tonic like a hydrotherapeutic bath, and the Bath Department, occupying an entire wing of The Greenbrier and offering the best equipment in America, is open every day throughout the year. Here the valuable types of baths are given according to individual indications, including baths in sulphur water, Nauheim baths, Aix and Vichy douches and sulphur mud packs. Local paraffin wax packs are also administered as well as the socalled foam baths or "bubbling baths" recently introduced from England.

MIAMI

THIS season contradicts the adage that "some fly east and some fly west" because everybody's flying south this season as fast as their long black town cars can carry them. Miami is the magnet that's drawing the resorters in such crowds that southbound trains are getting as long as freight cars and passenger planes are beginning to look like flocks of greese.

Frivolity becomes a habit here with amusements fairly flaunting themselves before bewildered resorters, who are at a loss which to choose.

The Miami Biltmore Women's Tennis tournament, Feb. 16-19 will be the inspiration for a number of social events. Considerable competition will be offered Catharine Sample, who defeated Jean Van der Bosch of Oxford, Eng., for the title last year. Mrs. J. Basil Maguire, the former Ruth Sellick of Greenwich, Conn. and Park Avenue, who, with Ricardo Morales won the mixed doubles last month in the British Colonial tournament, is prominent in the advance entry list.

Mrs. Philip B. Hawk, Forest Hills, N. Y., winner of the Metropolitan doubles title with Baroness Maud Levi in 1934, Miss Marta Barnett, Florida State Women's champion of Miami, formerly of Chicago and Miss Patty Kilmartin of Miami Beach, fifth ranking national woman player.

Mrs. Edward Everett Cann, prominent social figure of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, wife of the noted artist, will arrive this month to assist Miss Helen Lee Doherty with the third annual Helen Lee Doherty Milk Fund ball on Feb. 20. Miss Doherty, who is at present in Managua, Central America, dedicating the school she established there last fall, will arrive this week to begin arrangements for the ball.

Juvenile scions of society in Palm Beach and Coral Gables will battle for the highchair boxing title Feb. 15. Last year, the Palm Beach huskies won the trophy award presented by Col. Henry L. Doherty and the Florida Year-Round Clubs.

The coral pool of the Venetia apartments, is a favorite courting ground for sun lovers who are sojourning here.

Mrs. A. H. Moulton and Mrs. F. C. Wagner of Chicago, Mrs. A. T. Murphy of Winnetka, Ill., and J. Fred Farrell and Raymond Foster of Ridgewood, N. J., spend much of their time here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Coleman of East Orange, N. J., Mrs. Edward Steichen of New York, Mrs. L. S. Sines, D. R. Longnecker and Stewart Hawthorne of Rockville Center, N. Y., who are stopping at the Antilla, are golf enthusiasts who often play on the courses of the Coral Gables Country Club.

Members of the Florida Year-Round Clubs, who frequent the Miami Biltmore hotel courses include, Robert W. Clevenger of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. E. F. De Vilbiss of Kansas City, Mrs. Linton Fallis and H. C. Tillotson of Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wilson of Bridegport, Conn.; Miss Kate H. Pendleton of Winchester, Ky.; Miss Lucile Robinson of Des Moines, Iowa; Mrs. W. R. Stafford of Lakewood, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Soper of Montreal, Canada; John Cumming of Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. C. B. Bandler of New York, Mrs. J. B. Potts of Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. T. O. McLaughlin of Cincinnati and Jules Huot of Montreal, Can.

Informal guests who lunched this week at the Nineteenth hole after their golf games were: Mrs. W. R. Stafford of Lakewood, N. J.; Mrs. Joe Bydalek of Buffalo and Mrs. Guy Butler of Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York, owner of the famous Greentree Stables, had as her guests, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Moffett and son, Jack Moffett of New York, George Preston Marshall and Barney J. Flynn of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York was the guest of Joseph E. Widener and others were Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener II.

DuBose Heyward, winner of Pulitzer prize for "Porgy" will complete a new novel here within the next few weeks. Mr. Heyward, who has just returned from Puerto Rico, where he has been studying the negro, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Allen. Mr. Allen is the author of "Anthony Adverse." Many social events are complimenting the two authors.

Padriac Column, who is wintering at the San Sebastian hotel and Robert Frost, famous poet, are lecturing at the University of Miami.

The Coral Gables Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring an art exhibit this week at the Douglas entrance here. Mrs. Upton C. Ewing is chairman of the event, a preview tea and musicale of which was given Sunday in honor of those exhibiting.

Brief educational talks on art will be featured during the showing. Internationally known contemporary painters, etchers and sculptors will be presented together with a few originals of old masters. Canvasses are being sent from all parts of the country to be grouped with the work of local artists.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Danvenport of Rochester, N. Y., have taken a house on Columbus Boulevard and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Moray and their daughter, Norma, from New York, have just arrived to spend the season in their home on Avenue Salamanca.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wood have guesting in their home on Avenue Escobar, Dr. Marshall C. Balfour of Athens, Greece, and his father, J. S. Balfour, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Latham of New York and Miss Dorothea L. Latham, their grand daughter, have arrived to spend the season in their home on Granada Blvd.

Mrs. H. P. Borer of Little Neck, Long Island; Miss Lola Lafferty of New York, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fennell, also of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift of New Haven, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nias, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Cook of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Serralles of Puerto Rico, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Chanin of New York are among the recent arrivals at the Roney Plaza hotel.

Tea dances in the palm gardens of the Roney Plaza, where tropical foliage and flowers provide a typically native setting, are popular with the winter colony here.

Walter Howie, editor of the New York Daily Mirror and Mrs. Howie, were guests at the tea dance Sunday and other distinguished resorters who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Carl Buck, of Hanvan, Cuba; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. F. Gibson of Kew Gardens, L. I.; Miss Rose Goodis of New York, Ellsworth C. Alvord of Washington, D. C.; H. S. Kelsey of West Palm Beach, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Chanin of New York, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Beck of Wilkes Barre, Pa.; Sam Stewart and J. Patrick Kelly of Chicago, R. W. Brooks and Miss Florence Brooks of St. Louis, W. P. McDermitt of Maplewood, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Waddy Wilde of Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lawson of Tulsa, Okla.;

The Third Annual Miami to Nassau sailboat race across 184 nautical miles of Gulf Stream will take place this week.

More than one hundred gayly decked sea craft of all classes ranging from the smallest cabin cruiser to the largest pleasure yacht will be on hand to bid the sea captains a cheery Southern "Bon Voyage."

The boats will sip away around the Miami Sea Buoy and head for Nassau Harbor where a royal welcome awaits them from officials of the Bahaman government and the Nassau Yacht Club.

Among the foremost outdoor companion events to the Miami-Nassau race is the Pro-Senior Golf Tournament at the Miami Country Club, with an entry list of nearly 50 teams. There are three classes, according to seniority of the amateurs competing, each coupled with a professional. The pros will play for a purse appropriated from the entry fees and the simonpures will fight for glory, plate and the hope that their stroking may account for a hole or two in the best-ball event.

The Glenn Curtis Trophy Tournament, an annual affair at the Miami Springs Country Club, will draw the leading amateurs in the district and the Pro-Lady Tournament at the West Flagler Street Club will attract its full share of the prominent players on hand for current links competitions.

National figures in the tennis world will compete in the women's tournament scheduled here Feb. 16-19. Catharine Sample, who defeated Jean Van der Bosch of Oxford, Eng., last year in the finals will defend her title against a large entry list of tennis topnotchers. Mrs. J. Basil Maguire, the former Ruth Sellick of Greenwich, Conn., and Park Avenue, New York City, who with Ricardo Morales, ranking No. 1 of Cuba won the British Colonial tournament last month, will play. Among others will be Mrs. Philip B. Hawk, Forest Hills, holder of the Metropolitan doubles championship with Baroness Maud Levi in 1934; Miss Marta Barnett, Florida State Women's champion, formerly of Chicago, but now residing in Miami and Miss Patty Kilmartin, fifth ranking national woman player, Miami Beach.

The goose hangs high in southern resorts this season, sartorially speaking. Brilliant geese pins that fly at a smart angle across hats, frocks, and in the evening adorn milady's coiffures are the latest fancy of jewelry lovers. The most popular of these pins come in graduated sizes studded with small blue stones.

The South is definitely conscious of its feathered friends this year, one of the most novel ornaments being a flaming brooch in deep coral chanel which was worn effectively at a ball at the Miami Biltmore Country Club by a debutante in a frock of midnight blue chiffon.

NIGHTLY ENTERTAINMENT IN THE MAIN DINING ROOM

Internationally-known DANCE ORCHESTRAS BRILLIANT BALLROOM ENTERTAINERS GALA AFTERNOONS in THE CASCADES COCKTAIL DANCES in THE PALM PATIO

CORAL GABLES, MIAMI, FLORIDA

UNDER THE STARS

THE COLONY CLUB established a new innovation last week when the first of the Thursday Amateur Nights was inaugurated. The affair proved unusually successful from every angle. The talent, secured locally, offered a diversity of entertainment. Substantial cash prizes were awarded to winners.

Amateur Night will be held every Thursday night at the Colony Club throughout the season. Auditions for talent are held at three o'clock every Thursday afternoon at the club.

Another unusually successful event at the Colony Club, and one which will probably be made a weekly feature, was the leap year cocktail party held on Sunday afternoon. The Cafe de la Paix was crowded to capacity for the function, with many unusually surprise entertainment features on the program.

Smart throngs continue to attend the weekly galas on Wednesday and Saturday nights. At the last event of this kind, the club enjoyed one of the largest attendances in its eight years history.

Plans are going ahead rapidly for the annual Green and White Ball to be held at the Colony Club on Feb. 21 for the benefit of the Children's Welfare Aid of the Palm Beaches. A large section of the Earl Carroll Vanities is being brought to Palm Beach for the event and many other headliners will appear on the program.

Ernie Holst's Orchestra, Pedro and His Siboney Orchestra and the Colony Club Trio continue their vogue as among the most popular of the resort's entertainers. Mr. Holst was in particularly happy form as master of ceremonies on Amateur Night.

One of the largest parties given at the Colony Club recently was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Dow entertained. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hasler, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Moulton, Mr. and Mrs. George Stevenson Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. Luther A. Wait, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Shaughnessy, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jergens, Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. William Theodore Hoops, Mrs. Kenneth Alexander, Mrs. George Williams, Miss Margaret Crowley, Mr. James Bell Dobyne, Senator Beck and Mr. Thomas O'Gorman.

The Whitehall Lounge and the lakeside terrace continue to be one of the resort's popular spots for late afternoon and early evening entertaining. Frances Maddux, who made her debut here a week ago continues to charm auditors with her inimitable songs. Cy Delman and His Kentuckians purvey the kind of dance music which is apparently the colonists' favorite, judging by the thronged dance floor at every appearance.

The Patio has announced, through its managing director, Mr. Sam Salvin, a series of Wednesday night galas. The first, held last Wednesday night, was "A Night in Paris." Tomorrow night one of the Arabian Nights will be celebrated followed by Tropical Park Night, Feb. 19, the second annual Fashion and Jewel Show Feb. 26, and Carnival Night, March 4, each being featured by special entertainment, decorations and novelty surprises.

The regular program of nightly entertainment at the Patio continues to draw large throngs of colonists at each session. On the bill are Georges Metaxa, famous singing star of "Cat and the Fiddle;" Miss Frances Maddux, singing her chansons intimes; Arthur Brown and Val Ernie and His Continentals, generally conceded one of the finest dance orchestras ever brought from the North. Mr. Metaxa and Miss Maddux are playing a limited engagement only at the Patio.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Gordon Brown gave a large cocktail party at the Patio recently, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Ponvert, Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, Mr. and Mrs. Newell W. Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Christensen, Mr. Herbert Wildman, Mr. Raymond Lewis, Mr. Michael Good, Mr. Rowland Stebbins, Mr. Frank Rankin and Mr. Mathew Tracy.

Jardin Bijou the distinguished Worth Avenue restaurant is a fashionable rendezvous for dinner and supper parties and daytime entertaining. The patio is crowded during the luncheon hours when members of the colony gather there and refresh themselves in the sunlight.

One of the larger dinner parties last evening was that given by Mrs. Walter D. Yankauer, of New York city, in honor of her father, Mr. Eugene E. Sperry, who is visiting Mrs. Yankauer, at Brazilian Court, where she is spending the winter with her family.

Among those attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lipper, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Housman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Tim, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Zeckendorf, Mr. and Mrs. David Light, Mr. and Mrs. Italo Montemezzi, Mrs. Richard Conried, Mr. Emanuel Voss, Mrs. M. G. Stroud, Mrs. Samuel Borchard, Mr. Harry Rosenfeld, Mrs. William Leith and Miss Nettie Rosner.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hyde Barnum gave a tea at Jardin Bijou the distinguished Worth Avenue Restaurant Thursday afternoon for Mr. Serge Walter; members of the artists and writers contingent and of the Palm Beach cottage and hotel colonies. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moulton, Mr. George Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. George Angue Dobyne, Mr. and Mrs. Kimbark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. William Codman, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Wait, Miss Alice De Lamar.

Dress Is An Index Of Your Contents

Lavater

PRE-HISTORIC man, had two very important considerations in life—covering for his body, and food for his stomach; he probably gave all his thoughts to these matters. To-day, the man who thought of nothing else but his stomach would be looked down upon, and the same things would apply to the man who gave all his time to clothes. We would christen him a fop. Both of these subjects still have great importance in our lives, and in endeavoring to show the importance of correct dress, it is not my purpose to overstretch these points.

One of the first things the well dressed man considers is to dress appropriately for the occasion. This requires an extensive wardrobe, when once complete, is simply added to from time to time for those garments worn the most. Other garments which are used occasionally last for years.

The well-dressed man is very exact in all his recuirements. It is apparent he gives thought to every detail of his attire . . . he never over-steps the mark . . . he is always well-turned out, without being conspicuous . . . he attracts everyone's attention because there is apparently nothing about his appearance to attract the attention of anyone.

It is an old saying, "economizing on appearance is a poor investment." Why is it? So many otherwise well-turned out men believe it worthwhile to buy his topcoat "off-the-rack." After all there is as much difference in a finely tailored topcoat of becoming cut, as there is in any other garment that is made just for you. Even though it may cost twice as much, it is better to wear clothes which are your own, rather than replicas of what a thousand other men are wearing. When we put on dress clothes, they should be covered by an "evening" overcoat, especially designed for this purpose . . . any kind of overcoat will not do. Some of the overcoats worn over dress clothes by men of means are just as much out of place as wearing a silk hat with a tweed suit.

There are correct clothes for all occasions, and in subsequent articles, we shall endeavor to give you authentic information garnered from all the leading tailors of New York City.

TWYEFFORT

OPEN FROM JANUARY FIRST ship approaches the island of New Providence, when the bright Bahaman sun picks out the roofs and spires of old Nassau, the white beaches and the grim forts on the hills beyond. You see it there, just inside the harbour entrance, a great hotel rising from the palms of a garden estate that touches the changing blues and greens of the tropic waters.

This is the British Colonial, center of the smart resort-life that has made Nassau a British Riviera

The pleasures of your tropical holiday here include the comforts and Continental cuisine of this famous hotel . . . swimming in pool or surf, golf on a seaside course, yachting (with anchorage and landing at the hotel), tennis, horse racing, polo, deep-sea fishing . . . the varied interests of Nassau, from its gayety of night life to the fun of shopping for London and Paris imports.

Overnight from Miami

Florida, or two hours by daily airliner. Direct ships from Halifax, Boston and New York. For literature, hotel reservations, etc., address British Colonial Booking Director, 521 Fifth Avenue (Suite 2421-25), New York, N. Y.

LEKTROLITE Flameless Lighters

HAVE TAKEN THE STING AND THE STAIN OUT OF CIGARETTE SMOKING

FIND out yourself the tale the teardrops tell.

Take the nose bite test:

Light your favorite cigarette with a match or any old-fashioned flame lighter. Draw in a mouthful of smoke without inhaling. Then blow it through your nose . . . but look out for those tears in your eyes. The smoke irritates . . . bound to, because it contains subtle coal tar products.

THE COOLER SMOKE

Now take another cigarette. Light it on Lektrolite's mysterious, magic, flameless glow. Inhale and exhale as before. This time . . . no irritation . . . no tears—the coal tar products are absent.

Lektrolite's glow, a chemical action, is 1200° cooler than match or other flames . . . too cool a flame to release from tobacco the troublesome coal tar products that irritate the tissue.—and no yellow stains.

After you begin to use Lektrolite you will find that unsightly yellow stains are disappearing from teeth and fingers.

You will discover that even white kid gloves do not become soiled or stained as they were when flame was used. Such daintiness is yours for the same good reason—flameless ignition keeps coal tar under control.

IN MANY MODES

Lektrolite Lighters are the hit of New York, London, and Paris. They're as practical as breakfast—smart as tomorrow's hat. Wonderful to own and wonderful to give. At better dealers in brilliantly styled models, from $5. to $150.00.

The Southern contingent at the hotel is growing larger every week as the season advances. The latest additions to the group which make the Brazilian Court their winter home are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox Jeffress and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert M. Jeffress of Richmond, Va. Also from Virginia are Mrs. Fred Skinner of Newport News, and Mr. and Mrs. Tennant Bryan of Richmond, who spent the season at Brazilian Court two years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wollen of Chapel Hill, N. C., are here for a month's visit.

The beautiful patio at the Hotel Seaglade has been the setting recently for several delightful parties. Mrs. Alfred H. Wagg entertained at the first of a series of luncheons having as her guests, Mrs. Veazey Rainwater, Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy, Mrs. William Barthold, Mrs. Vash Young, Mrs. Robert C. Palmer, Mrs. Ermina Gaspard, Mrs. Clarence R. Bitting, Mrs. Frederick K. Ream, Miss Anne Barthold and Miss Ruth Palmer.

Among recent arrivals at the hotel who are here for a stay of several weeks are Mr. and Mrs. James G. McDonald and their daughter, Barbara Ann McDonald, who, while here, will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Ittleson.

BUT IT GOT AWAY

CLOSE to 300 sailfish have been brought alongside during the past week's fishing off Palm Beach with 120 landed in one day recently, establishing the highest all-time record to that date.

More interest is being shown in sailfish this year than ever before, due largely to the popularity of the Silver Sailfish Derby being held at this time. Many of the sportsmen are also following the established custom of releasing the average sized fish after the thrill of the battle is over.

Mr. Orson D. Munn, well-known resort visitor, who is the guest of Mrs. Henry Morgan Tilford, took up honors in the daily fishing contest recently, entering a beautiful specimen measuring 7 feet, 9 inches, while out with Mr. George Vetleson of New York.

Mrs. John Charles Thomas, wife of the operatic star, landed a sailfish 7 feet, 6 inches long while aboard the Goldfish.

With Capt. Mel Elderd aboard the Juliana from Poinciana basin were Mr. Ray K. Thrasher of Chardon, Ohio, who landed a sailfish measuring 7 feet, 10 inches and a 22-pound wahoo.

Mrs. Edward Donnelly, daughter of Governor James M. Curley of Massachusetts, landed a large sailfish measuring 7 feet, 7 inches while out with Mr. Donnelly aboard the Juanita D.

Mr. George Manning, Buffalo, N. Y., and the Sea Glade Hotel, fishing for the first time, landed three sails, 7 feet, 11 inches, 7 feet and 5 feet, 10 inches, while fishing aboard Capt. Francis McBride's Black Hawk with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stewart, the latter landed a 7 foot, 2 inch sail.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Rea had as their guests for a fishing trip aboard their yacht Eldorea IV, captained by Mat Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hahn, Sewickley, Pa., Mrs. Hahn landed a 7 foot, 8 inch and a 7 foot, 2 inch sail and Mr. Hahn landed a 7 foot, 4 inch sail.

A total of nine sailfish were landed by Mr. Fred Gordon and Mr. Fred Gordon, Jr., of Hobe Sound and New York while fishing with Capt. Walt Githens of Poinciana basin aboard the Miss Sally. Mr. Gordon, Sr., landed four while Mr. Gordon, Jr., brought in five, all sizeable fish.

Fishing aboard the Miss Sally, the day previously, the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough brought in a total of five sailfish, the former landing two and the latter bringing in three.

Mrs. John B. Love, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman, landed a 7-foot sailfish while accompanied by Mr. Ralph Wilkens and Mr. Erwin Eizler of Chicago.

Reams have been written a hout sailfish standing on their tails but here is a photo offering definite proof of the sailfish's ability to do that very thing.

CRUISING BY AIR AND WATER

PROBABLY no play place in the world has wider, more varied horizons than Florida—more worthwhile places at hand nor more practical magic by which to go, and return.

For example—this year the entire continent of South America has been pulled up two days closer to the United States from Miami and Palm Beach. The old Spanish Main, still rosy with romance, is well within the practical horizon of a weekend.

For now scenes reached between breakfast and dinner, you may pick your spots among mysterious Haiti, lovely Jamaica, sentimental old Santo Domingo or picture-book Puerto Rico—all yours in a day.

Another day finds you deep in Mexico, across the blue Caribbean in Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, or wandering among the isles which dream in the sunshine from Puerto Rico south—the Virgin Islands, artists' paradise, Antigua, Off from Florida any morning after breakfast one may dine in English Jamaica, mysterious Haiti, sentimental old Santo Domingo or San Juan, Puerto Rico, garden spot of the Atlantic. All by the modern magic of the famous, wider than Pullman "Flying Clipper Ships" of the air.

Martinique, Guadaloupe, Port of Spain. And two days brings you back.

If you yearn for still wider horizons the Guianas, the Amazon and Brazil; Ecuador, Peru and Chile unfold beneath your borrowed wings next day. Ravishing Rio itself, 6000 miles away, is only a five-day jaunt, if you go flying down—and brilliant Buenos Aires is only Thursday to Wednesday from your headquarters here.

If you are one of those who believe with Robert Louis Stevenson that to travel is a better thing than to arrive, you'll find plenty of interest in the colorful mosaics moving beneath you as you lean back in an overstuffed chair, stroll the capacious cabin of your observation car of the air or enjoy warm lunch above the clouds.

You may get some of the thrills of youth at finding yourself in foreign ports and back in a few brief hours, but these glamorous flights are just simple days of duty for the skippers of the clipper ships who daily fly the skyroads to new horizons south.

Would you like to cross the Atlantic in a day, without touching the sea?

Igor Sikorsky, one of the world's fore-most aircraft designers, tells us that this will soon be possible. And he should know, for he has been building successful airplanes since his youth in Russia and finally, in America, produced the giant four-engine flying Clipper ships for the Pan American Airways System, one of which was first to fly the Pacific on survey trips last year and whose sister ships are now operated by Pan American from Florida to the West Indies and on down the long South American east coast to Rio and Buenos Aires—over 7000 miles in five and a half days.

But let's hear from Mr. Sikorsky himself, who visited in South Florida last week:

"In my mind the most outstanding event in air transportation during this current year has been the series of flights conducted by Pan American Airways from San Francisco to Honolulu and Manila across the Pacific Ocean. All of these trips were carried out by that organization with perfect precision. A definite schedule was set up for each trip and this schedule rigidly adhered to throughout," said the great aircraft creator.

It is now only a matter of a short time before the inauguration of weekly trans-Pacific mail and passenger flying, and I personally believe that shortly thereafter we will see the beginning of the pioneering of the trans-Atlantic service. In three to five years this will be the regular, routine way of transportation to Europe. And only a little later it will be possible to get to any part of the globe in two or three days.

"My first successful plane, built in 1911, weighed approximately 1100 pounds. The The trans-Pacific "Clipper" ship, the S-42, weighs 40,000 pounds. Thus you can see we have shown a great deal of progress in size within the last twenty-four years.

"The airplane of the future, whether seaplane or landplane, will be, with respect to appearance, quite similar to our present machines. However, these ships will have cruising speeds between 200 and 300 miles per hour. Perhaps some of these ships will be used in the stratosphere, but I consider it will be impracticable for the majority of the air transports to be used in this area of rarefied air, because of the limitations set up by the difficult and costly construction of a ship necessarily airtight and supercharged for this extremely high altitude flying. Twenty to twenty-five thousand feet of altitude will be quite sufficient for these future air liners, and at such altitudes these ships will be above the majority of air disturbances permitting the passenger to enjoy a very smooth and comfortable ride.

"Most of the future landplanes will be considerably larger than the present type. They will easily accommodate thirty to forty passengers or comfortably sleep twenty-five passengers. There will be roomy compartments, ample headroom, and good visibility, with the possibility of being able to move about easily. The flying boats, because of the great distances which they must cover, will be even larger, with smoking rooms, dining salons, private rooms, in fact in a small way will be comparable to our most modern and luxurious trans-oceanic liner.

"These large flying boats will weigh one hundred tons or more. The four-engined landplanes are here to stay. The large seaplanes may have twice as many engines. I have very personal reasons for being conservative in these forecasts as I might well be called upon at a later date to prove my statements, and actually build ships of this size and characteristics.

"The United States is now leading the world in efficiency, safety and speed with its wonderful air lines. Great effort should be made to maintain this leadership which is of extreme importance for national economic development and prestige in peace time, as well as being most essential for safety in case of military emergency."

Among the 5,000 a month now taking air cruises to fascinating spots in the Spanish Main via the flying Clipper ships were the following during the past few days: Philip J. and Annette Roosevelt, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, premier of Ontario; Thos. Howe, New York capitalist, owner of yacht Thalia; June Knight and Nancy Carroll, screen stars; Quentin Reynolds, magazine writer; Harold L. Ickes, member president's cabinet, son and party; DuBose Heyward, well known playwright; George Chamot, diplomat; Mr. and Mrs. Owen B. Winters of New York, Walter Darling and Dwight Fiske, writers; Gladys Swarthout, opera star and husband, Frank Chapman; Mr. and Mrs. Fuller Rothchild of Chicago, Rene DuPont, Colonel Edward A. Deeds of New York, the Louis Rosenthals of New York.

George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Shaw made two visits to the International Airport to inspect the giant Clipper ships last week during their brief stay in Miami after arrival by steamer from England.

Miami's increasing importance as a point of embarkation for winter cruises to the West Indies, Central and South America is recognized more and more by travel-minded people because it is a more convenient port for passengers from the South and West than is New York.

An interesting cruise to five foreign ports is being offered through the Eastern Steamship Company to ports including Kingston, Jamaica, Willemstad, Curacao; D. W. I., La Guaira, Venezuela; Colon, Panama; Havana, and return to Miami sailings from Miami scheduled for February 4, February 24, and March 13.

Aboard the luxurious cruise steamer, the "Evangeline," Kingston, the picturesque capital of Jamaica in the British West Indies, is the first stop. Next port is Willemstad, Curacao. This quaint colonial town in the Dutch West Indies is doubly enjoyable because of its unexpected difference from preconceived ideas gained from the nearby British and French Colonial possessions.

Leaving the islands behind, the "Evangeline" crosses the brilliant "Spanish Main," of pirate lore to La Guaira, Venezuela. This historic port, dating back to the days of Spanish galleons and the Gold Coast of South America, is situated at the base of the famed Andes, which at this point rise steeply into the clouds. An optional side trip to Caraca, the Venezuelan capital in the heart of the Andes, is a feature of this stop.

Following La Guira, the "Evangeline" will call at Colon, Panama. This port, at the eastern end of the Panama Canal, is an unusual addition to Caribbean cruise routines. It was added as a result of numerous requests to Eastern Steamship Lines, an evidence of the growing interest in the American activities in the Panama Canal Zone. Colon, located as it is, at the crossroads between the Atlantic and Pacific, has an extremely cosmopolitan atmosphere. Its bars and cafes are among the gayest in the world. Colon is a free port, and offers unusual shopping opportunities among large stocks of European merchandise. From Colon, an optional side trip is available across the Isthmus to Panama City and the Pacific ocean.

Turning homeward from Panama, the "Evangeline" spends a day and night in Havana before returning to Miami. Special entertainment features have been arranged at each of the "Evangeline's" stops. These include drives to points of scenic and historic interest, night trips to cafes, etc. Mr. Parker also calls attention to the fact that the "Evangeline" is scheduled to dock at a pier in every harbor, eliminating hours spent in tenders moving to and from ships anchored several miles offshore and allowing the greatest possible time for actual sightseeing and recreation.

Winging its way southward is the palatial transport plane of the Eastern Airways which makes breakfast in New York and dinner in Miami possible through its rapid and efficient service offered.

WITH THE PALM BEACH FLEET

TE contrast between the blizzard swept, bleak cities of the North and the tropical picture of comfort and enjoyment presented by the outdoor activities of the Palm Beach colony is accentuated by the presence of the colorful fleet of palatial yachts and houseboats which grace the palm lined harbor.

Scorning the speed and dash of some of the modern socialites who flit about the continent in their fast planes to keep their various business and social engagements, the owners of the trim craft now anchored in tropical waters prefer to enjoy the panorama of diversified sports and amusements to be found in sunny Palm Beach in more leisurely fashion.

Making the exclusive resort their headquarters they follow their various hobbies and diversions from their movable mansions without wandering far from home.

Few of the present day winter visitors realize the jungle loveliness to be found in a leisurely cruise down the inland waters of Florida. Sheltered lagoons with their beautiful water lilies bordered by the twisted growth of luxuriant tropical foliage; the sudden appearance around a turn in the stream of an immaculate expanse of lawn leading up to one of the lovely homes encountered along the journey and many more charming scenes greet the yachtsman as he floats placidly down stream toward his destination.

Most of us have lost touch with the tranquil mode of living enjoyed by the Palm Beach visitor of twenty years ago.

Years ago in Palm Beach a cruise around the palm-lined lake or through the many beautiful inland canals was an indispensable part of the schedule of the Palm Beach resident.

In the early afternoon dozens of electric launches dotted the lake and the tributary streams flowing far back into the cool green fastness of the jungle.

Before the wheel-chair and the pleasure launch became as scarce as the vanishing Indian, the program for the day called for a wheel-chair ride from the veranda of the hotel or cottage in which one stayed in company with a pleasantly chatting group of friends to embark on the inevitable afternoon trip to Munyon's Island or to more distant points of interest.

Picnics in those days took the place of the more pretentious luncheon parties of today. The modern yachtsman however has recaptured the spirit of leisureliness so prevalent in the olden days and has regulated his life to the tempo of the socialite of the gay nineties.

Life with him is not one scramble after another to keep up with the modern parade. When he boards his luxurious > boat he leaves business, social and other obligations with which he has been harried far behind, and refuses to be bothered with schedules of any sort.

While his contemporaries follow a program almost as rigid as the one they have left behind them in the frozen North, the members of the Palm Beach fleet bask lazily in the sunshine on the decks of their yachts: play a little golf; perhaps do a bit of angling in the Gulf Stream; attend the polo games at Phipps Field or in some cases participate in them and only occasionally vary the quiet secluded life aboard with an occasional cocktail or bridge party.

Prince and Princess Serge Mdivani found the sequestered atmosphere of their yacht "Jedge" an ideal retreat for their honeymoon.

A short cruise through the picturesque inland channels of the peninsula followed the nuptials. The Prince and his bride are commuting between the Palm Beach harbor and Phipps Field where the sports loving nobleman and his Georgians have played in many hard fought polo matches.

The Mdivani string of twenty-one ponies housed at the Gulf Stream stables receive a great deal of the Prince's personal attention. A capable horseman, the verile leader of the hard-riding Georgian team has an almost personal interest in Arthur J. Moulton, floating just off the Royal Park docks is one of the most luxuriantly appointed yachts afloat. From the graceful prow of the beautiful craft to the stern one finds every conceivable comfort and appurtenance.

After viewing the distinctively decorated and comfortable interior of the "La Verriere" it is easy to understand why the popular socialites spend most of their time aboard their boat. Not the least of the many attractive features found on the yacht is the unique collection of pillows depicting scenes from every port at which the Moultons have touched. The pillows were personally designed by Mrs. Moulton and lend a colorful and pleasing touch.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Moulton always look forward to the parties given aboard their yacht. They are certain of spending a delightful afternoon or evening aboard the lovely craft as guests of the distinguished couple.

tone's "Masquerader" discloses a delightful informality and that air of gay camaraderie which is apparent among the yachting group in Palm Beach waters.

Aboard his boat he is safe from importunate autograph collectors; ambitious mothers who simply must have his cpinion on the singing abilities of their darling offspring; cough syrup manufacturers who wish Mr. Thomas to endorse the throat soothing concoctions they are producting; charming young ladies who are dying to achieve operatic roles through the influence of the eminent singer and all the conscious and unconscious pests who beset the prominent figures in the musical world.

Mr. George Dobyne deserted the golf courses long enough to entertain his friend, Dr. Walter E. Dandy, aboard the "Coconut" recently at a luncheon presided over by his charming wife. The party cruised up to Hobe Sound afterwards for a short trip.

Possibly no Palm Beach resident gets more enjoyment out of the program presented for the visiting socialite than the popular Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne. Using their splendidly equipped boat as a base they touch at whatever point arouses their interest and while many pleasant hours away without bothering about the more formal engagements which keep so many of their friends busy.

A gleaming expanse of shining brasswork, immaculately white paint and roll hel mahogany mark the trim lines of Mr. George A. Dobyne's perfectly appointed yat.ht. The distinguished sportsman finds his craft an excellent base for his traveling tour of the finest golf courses in America.

At a dinner party last week on board the "Coconut" Madam Vicker von Post Totten, the celebrated artist, was the guest of honor with Mr. and Mrs. William B. Sweatt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burke and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Sweatt attending.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron D. Miller, after journeying north by way of the picturesque in and waters, will return to Palm Beach shortly with a group of their friends as guests aboard their yacht, "Bymar."

The Byron Millers are members of the Cabana colony at the Breakers and number many of the Palm Beach colony among their friends. The journey through inland waters to New York and other points north is being facilitated by the opening up of a thirty-five mile stretch of canal south of Charles' on, South Caro ina, which will eliminate the necessity of putting out to sea for any part of the journey north.

At present the stretch south of Charleston is the only point where the roving yachtsmen have to scurry out to brave the deeper waters of the Atlantic.

Mr. Atwater Kent, Jr., with his yatching party, stopped off at Phipps Field on the way to Palm Beach to witness a polo game. They were attracted by the colorful gathering of socialites who made up the audience attending the game and decided to cast anchor long enough to watch the game being played between Prince Mdivani's Georgians and Laddie Sanford's Texans.

Mr. Kent, Jr., like the host of Palm Beach yacht owners, believes in cruising around the peninsula and stopping whereever fancy dictates. An increasing number of the Palm Beach fleet are showing interest in the tri-weekly polo games being held at Phipps Field.

REVIEWING TOURNAMENT GOLF

TOURNAMENT golf in Palm Beach will reach its high point this week with the annual Women's Tournament of Palm Beach already under way. A number of outstanding feminine golfers, including Patty Berg, winner of the Miami-Biltmore event, Marion Miley, runner-up in the Miami tourney, as well as a score of other prominent feminine niblick wielders will battle it out over the Country Club this week for the famous Chalice trophy.

Mrs. Phillip D. Hill of London won the event last year defeating Miss Miley after a gruelling 18 hole round. Mrs. R. P. Limburg of Chicago won the second flight finals, defeating Mrs. Lawrence Schwab of New York, while the third flight finals was won by Miss Mary K. Anderson, well known member of the resort Colony Club who defeated Mrs. T. W. Hawes of Summit, N. J.

One of the most imposing groups of tournament golfers entered in the Invitational Tournament in several years, qualified at the Everglades Club over the 18-hole round, with Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., sharpshooter, taking the medal with a 73.

One stroke behind came B. S. Cunningham of Green Farms, Conn., who registered a brace of 37's for a 74, while Looming up out of the tangled profusion of tropical forest the Everglades tower looks out on this artfully concealed water hazard with its palm bordered shores and distant Royal Palms gracing the Club golf course.

John B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., and Howard Tryon of the Miami Biltmore shared honors with 75's.

Although handicaped by an injured finger which has kept him out of tournament play for several weeks, Goodwin carded a fine round. He made a 34 for the out-nine, one under the club par, registering birdies on the fourth and seventh holes and equalling club figures on the others. On the in-round his grip hampered by a bandage, he was four over the club par of 35, making three fives and a six on the 18th but nevertheless turning in the low score of the day against a formidable field.

Three flights of eight were paired for match play with George Rasmussen of Chicago, winner of the event last year, failing to make the top flight, carding an 81 for the round.

Summary: Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., 34-39-73; B. S. Cunningham, Green Farms, Conn., 37-37-74; John B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., 38-37—75; Howard Tryon, Miami Biltmore, 37-38—75; James H. Howard, Framingham, Mass., 36-40—76; William B. Langford, Chicago, 40-38—78; Jack McCarthy, Wellesley, Mass., 38-40-78; Arthur Brown, Fall River, Mass., 41-38—79; Allan K. Wylie, Winnetka, Ill., 40-39—79; J. A. McAuliffe, Brooklyn, N. Y., 42-38—80; Roger Bacon, Palm Beach, 41-40—81; George Rasmussen. Chicago, 42-39—81; Leonard Beard, New York, 42-39—81; Col. Wade H. Carpenter, New York, 40-42—82; John Barry Ryan, New York, 43-41-84; John W. Madden, Omaha, Neb., 42-43—85; R. W. Clarke, Bedford C. C., New York, 43-42— 85; Blaine Zuver, Cleveland, Ohio, 41-45-86; H. L. Willoughby, 3rd, Port Sewell, Flaa., 44-42-86; C. B. Grady, Sky Top, Pa., 44-42—86; Ted Bersbach, Chicago, 40-46—86; G. K. Morgan, New York, 43-43—86; Stephan Sanford, New York, 43-42—85; Clinton S. Dow, 40-47—87; H. L. Willoughby, Jr., 42-46—88; C. Douglas Dillon, Newport, R. I., 47-41—88; G. Horton Glover, New York, 45-44—89.

W. A. Pagan, Jr., 17-year-old golfing sensation, thrilled the gallery when he defeated C. A. Edwards, Hempstead, L. I., tournament veteran, in the finals of the South Florida championship event by the wide margin of 6 and 5 to take the championship over the Poinciana course.

Although two down on the out-nine of the morning round which was played in brisk showers, Pagan hit his winning stride on the in-nine to even the terms and finish three up at noon. He continued his rhythmic golf in the afternoon engagement to widen the margin and finish six-up on the 31st hole.

Pagan's golf was a bit ragged at the start of the morning round, while Edwards played a steady game to make the turn two-up with a 40, Pagan registering a 38. The youthful golfer settled down with the wind and rain abating and after making the turn, took the 10th with a four, the 11th with a birdie three and the 13th with another three to edge out in front. He maintained his sharp-shooting stride to take the 14th, 16th and 17th in par figures but lost the 18th when Edwards shot a beautiful putt for a birdie three.

Consistently longer with his tee shots and putting his approaches right to the pin during the afternoon round, Pagan took the first hole with a 4 when Edwards three-putted the green. He was over on the short second and chipped back to the edge to lose the hole with a 4. He took the next three holes with 4's, halved the sixth, but bunker trouble lost the seventh for him. A beautiful 20-foot putt gave him a birdie 3 on the eighth but he lost the ninth when he landed in a trap on the approach, making a 37 for the nine, putting him 5 up at the turn, two strokes under his opponent. Missing a short putt caused Pagan to halve the 10th while Edwards' putt in the 11th stopped on the lip of the cup to make it another even hole. Edwards visited a trap on the 11th while it was Pagan's turn in the 11th, the latter rimming the cup on that hole to halve it again. Edwards' drive landed in a bad lie on the 13th, and he three-putted the green to lose the hole and the match.

In the second flight finals, B. S. Cunningham, Green Farms, Conn., defeated Howard H. Brooker, White Plains, N. Y., 2 up.

Third flight finals winner was S. A. Greer, Bowling Green, Ky., who defeated George T. McCarthy, Bridgeport, Conn., 2 and 1.

In the fourth flight finals, M. B. Jones, New York, defeated S. A. Moody, Brookline, 7 and 8.

Finals in the famous Artists and Writers tourney took on a familiar aspect with Rex Beach, noted author, taking his old-time rival and noted sports figure, Grantland Rice, by the score of 1 up.

Known as perennial champions and runner-ups until a few years ago when the annual tilt was broken up by other golfers, Beach and Rice resumed their good natured golf fued of old standing in a match that was hard fought all the way.

Beach was two-up at the turn on the Country Club course, making a 40 to Rice's 42. Grant took the 10th with a five when Beach three-putted the green, but Beach landed the 11th with a six when Rice got into plenty of trouble on the long hole.

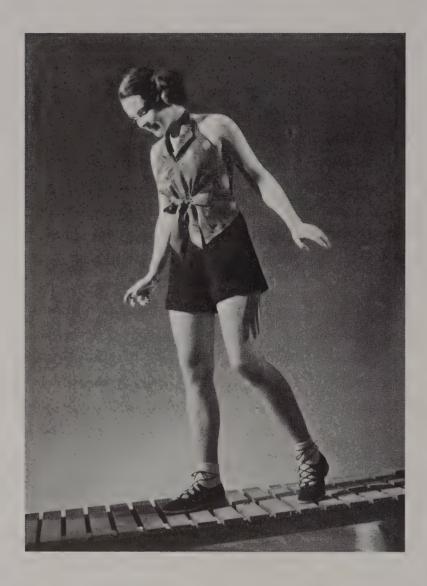

They halved the next threes, but Rice negotiated the 13th with a three to cut the margin to one. They halved the remaining holes with Beach fighting hard to retain his slim lead, which he did to take the match.

Herb Roth won the second flight finals defeating J. N. Wheeler, 2 and 1. Winner of the first flight consolation finals defeating J. N. heeler, 2 and 1. Winner of the first flight consolation event was C. A. Hughes, while W. J. Enright took the second flight consolation honors.

PALM BEACH ART CENTER

Hailed by an enthusiastic group of art critics and patrons as the most superior representation of the works of leading American Artists to be displayed in America for some years, the marvelous collection of canvasses, etchings and sculptures now being viewed at the Palm Beach Art Center, in the former Oasis Club on Main Street, has been augmented by several canvasses of distinction.

Among the most notable of the acquisitions is an enormous canvas by one of the greatest living painters of murals in America. Miss Violet Oakley completed the canvas now on display at the Palm Beach Art Center in the historic environs of the League of Nations assembly building. The creator of this notable work of both historic and artistic interest is a member of the National Academy of Design; the Arculo de Belles Artes of Madrid, Spain; the Legion of Honor in Paris and the recipient of innumerable medals for her magnificent craftsmanship in the fashioning, striking and technically perfect murals.

The development of the Palm Beach Art Center to its present stage of artistic importance is due in a large measure to the indefatigable and perseverence of Nunzio Vayana, director of the exhibition and guiding light for the numerous struggling artists whose works have received recognition through the unselfish efforts of the capable director whose own artistic ability and cultural background have eminently fitted him for the role of big brother to less fortunate artists.

An exquisite merging of the landscape vistas of unusual charm and brilliant color, blending with the more subdued colors and motifs of portrait and life and study greets the visitor to the main gallery of the Exhibition.

The tasteful and artistic arrangement of the distinctive canvasses by Mr. Vayana, capab'e director of the art center, shows rare discrimination and an innate sense of artistic values.

Among the outstanding gathering of superb creations Louis Mora's fancifully conceived picture, "In Goya's Time," depicts a romantic version of the period when Goya gathered his friends together and sang haunting ballads for them.

This canvas is a brilliant treatment of figures in light and varicolored shadow, marked by the artist's ability in capturing the elfin spirit of the gypsy-like gathering. The figures are splendidly projected against a lumunous background.

"Flickering Shadows," by Abbott Graves, who is known as one of the most outstanding painters of flowers and New England doorways, is an apt descriptive title for the pattern of light filtered through the leaves of a tree which he so ably portrays. The vigorous outlines of the branches and leaves are plainly discernible in the bold etching of the reflection.

One can easily envision the occupants of the old New England home represented, as a gracefully ageing silver haired couple whose mellow lives approximate the pastoral serenity of the depicted scene.

Mary McKinnon Johnson has a beautifully designed canvas of charm and distinction at the Palm Beach Art Center.

Her portrait of Mrs. Thomas Mallory has attracted many of the Palm Beach art lovers who find the composition and treatment extremely interesting.

This beautiful Palm Beach socialite shows rare talent in the lovely creation noted in this collection.

A master of realistic portrayal is John C. E. Taylor. His floral painting "Arrangement in White" has that indefinable something which the English designate as the work of a "Gentleman Painter." His work, as always, is marked by a virginal treatment and design.

Sandor Vaya has three portraits extremely rich in color, powerful in design and intensely luminous. His clear cut picture, "The Nurse" shows a suggestion of the strength which is brought out so vividly in his rugged study "In Church."

A charming portrait of Mrs. H. H. Rogers, widow of the late oil magnate, by Albert Herter, shows charm and solidity; charm because of the loveliness of the lady and solidity from a technical standpoint in the treatment of the subject.

"At the Casa Rosita" by by Henry S. Hubbell, is a beautiful blend of portrait, still life and exotic landscaping. The figure is silhuetted against the very sunny atmosphere of the patio and the tropical background furnished by the rare plant life. This picture was exhibited at the National Academy of design before being brought here and is an exceptionally fine piece.

One of the richest still lifes in the exhibit is Frederick M. Grant's "Geraniums." Mr. Grant, who is well known in Chicago, has several of his virile studies in prominent Palm Beach homes.

Inconspicuously placed in nooks where one has to examine the paintings minutely to find them, one finds a few of

Mrs. H. H. Rogers shown in a striking treatment of a lovely subject. Albert Herter has produced another of his inimitable portraits in this outstanding canvas now being viewed at the Palm Beach Art Center.

Mr. Nunzio Vayana's marines. The coloring and construction of the studies noted is authentic and distinctive. The marvelously true shades of sky and water make even the smallest of this artists' marine paintings standout in high class company.

"Vicaya Miami," by Margaret Cooper, has a precision of design in architectural treatment and an atmospheric charm which form a decidely unusual charm.

Another interesting number by Jane Peterson shows an intelligent grasp of color and technique. The zinnias which she so ably portrays in this picture show marked ability and taste. "Mlle. X." is an odd-ly flippant study of a modern young woman. Garish colors and hectic design of costume contribute toward the feeling of unrest which the uniquely conceived study induces. A striking commentary on the seething restlessness of the present generation.

Mr. Daniel Garber's "In a Wood" is a woodland scene of great simplicity and charm, depicted with commendable clarity in technique and coloring.

"Mother and Children" by that master of the three dimensions, Mr. J. E. Costigan, who stands alone in the science of weaving of exquisitely sculptured figures in startling relief against a bizarre background of colors, is a master-piece of depth and perspective. In our humble opinion Mr. Costigan is an incomparable master of perspective.

Of Charles Vezin you wonder at the versatility and refinement displayed by this artist in each of his efforts. He has here an interesting view of New York in early morning which is a Metropolitan Symphony of majestic towers looming out of the maze and silhouetted against the smoke-veiled sky.

An interesting portrait in contour by Margaret Fitzhugh Browne, whose pen has produced an absorbing book on portrait painting is beautifully patterned and shows a definite aristocracy of treatment.

An important canvas by Pieretto Bianco which received a prize two years ago in an exhibition held in Palm Beach, is an extraordinary work from a technical standpoint. The white flowers complementing the delicate green of the leaves and the employment of the damask like pattern reflecting the rich warm light and colors marking the intricately designed picture, combine to form an unusually interesting study.

Meticulous precision so evident in the superior collection of etchings on display at the Center becomes more incredible to the layman on closer examination of the background of delicate technique and arduous labor involved in their creation.

The intricate process of forming an etching or block print is a labor which requires intensive effort as well as an extraordinary technique. Not once but many times must the copper surface of the plate necessary in transforming the work to paper, be carved and treated in the forming of shadows of varying intensity. Among the most distinctive of etchings is a beautiful scene entitled "Venetian Mirror," whose delicacy and finesse of treatment reflect the patience required to transcribe the beautifully carved work of the architecture into reflection.

Another great etcher, Daniel Garber, who also has two oil paintings on display, has several splendid sketches, among which "Straw Barracks" is outstanding with its rural setting so aptly transcribed to paper.

"The Big Elm," by Luigi Lucioni, is a masterpiece of precision and design. The majestic outlines of the giant elm are distinctively brought out in this effectively conceived outdoor scene.

Gordon Grant's "Laughing Breton" is probably the most dynamic piece of the collection. The virile has an intensely masculine appeal and the artistry of the sketch is subtly apparent in the bringing out of this quality.

Prominent among the etchers are Philip Kappell, N. Berwinchack, Milan Petrovich, Richard Merrick, Alfred Hutty, Frank Callcott, Katherine Merrill, Josephine Vermilie, Daniel Garber, Eleanor Modrakowska, Sophonisba Hergenshaimer, Hortense Ferne, John Taylor Arms, O. W. Hoffman, Caroline Van H. Dean, Ferdinand Burgdorff, Ernest Watson, Luigi Lucioni, Elizabeth White, Carola Spaith, Henry Block, Juanita Smith, Gordon Grant, Emily Burling Waite, Bessy Creighton, Aline Rhonie.

Many superior pieces are noted among the sculptures exhibited. One of the most striking busts is a polychrome marble by Evelyn B. Longman (Mrs. Batchelor) of an exquisite young woman. The marble is treated in the same manner as were the sculptures of the Rennaissance period. The intricate combination of colored marble and the introduction of color by absorption through the use of chemicals is employed to give the bust the delicate flesh tints. This blending relieves the ghastliness of the marble and instills the life like coloring so apparent in this beautiful piece.

The sculpture exhibit is not very large but of exceedingly fine quality. There are works by Anna Hyatt Huntington, Chester Beach, Jeanett Scudder, Evelyn Longman, John Limrock, C. P. Jennewein, Beatrice Fenton, Albert Aureli, Mable Jane Hess, Allen Townsend Terrell, Edith Ramsey, A. P. Proctor, Justin Strum, Madeline Park, Louis Mayer and Kathleen Wheeler.

Other artists represented at the Center are Anna E. Allen, Perry Lee Allen, Courtney Allen, Horace Brown, Anna C. Bradley, Edna Bernstein, Otto Bierhals, Celine Bakeland, Pieretto Bianco, F. H. Bray, Sidney Burleigh, S. Lingou Burgess, Albert Bachus, Hilda Belcher, Nicila D. Ascenzo, Virgia Evans, Daisy Efb, Leanna Lahr, Ralph Fabri, Wilford Conrou, Betty Duprey, Lucille Dingley, Rosalie Carcy, Denman Fink, Usher De Voll, Hildegarde Hamilton, Leonebel Jacobs, Walter Hayn, Elizabeth Hicks, Thomas Hanna, Henry Hubbell, Henry Hillbom, Rachel Hartley, Bess James, Rowland Lyon, O. F. McIntyre, Grace Wilson, Hildegarde Muller, Clara Knox, Mary Kane, Faidee Morrison

IN THE REALM OF MANSION AND HACIENDA

THE Continental atmosphere of the Palm Beach colony has been accentuated by two weddings among the nobility within the past two weeks and the arrival of a score or more of European peers.

With a representative gathering of the aristocracy of this country, some of the finest leaders in the artistic and literary field and a group of representatives from the best manors of the old world, Palm Beach finds that she is entertaining one of the most distinguished array of socialites and celebrities in her history.

Finding the feudal fastness of Colonel and Mme. Louis Jacques Balsan's island retreat an ideal base for their Palm Beach social activities, the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough in company with their daughter and son, Lady Sara Spencer Churchill and the Marquis of Blandford, Lord and Lady Montagu and Mr. Wadsworth E. Lewis are enjoying the seclusion and hospitality of the Balsan's home.

The Marlboroughs and their four children were frequently entertained at the estate of the Duke's uncle, Mr. Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, across the way last season, while visiting the former Duchess of Marlborough and her husband Colonel Balsan.

no doubt was the inspiration for the present exclusive home of the distinuished Colonel and his wife. No European castle with moat and drawbridge possesses a more interesting setting than the Hypoluxo island home of the popular socialites.

Prince and Princess Mdivani, who were married recently in a simple ceremony at the bride's home, devoid of ostentation and elaborate preparation have inaugurated a new era in unpretentious nuptial arrangements.

The wedding took place in the extremely informal atmosphere of the Van Alen home with double ring service being read by the Rev. Dr. William Biederwolf, pastor of the Poinciana Chapel. The Princess had no attendants and her brother, Mr. James H. Van Alen, was the groom's best man.

Both the Prince and Princess Mdivani are noted for their unaffected and wholesome outlook on life. The Prince being an expert horseman and a polo player of note undoubtedly has a great deal in common with his sports loving wife, who is intensely interested in her husband's polo activties with his hard riding Georgians.

During the whirlwind games being played at Phipps Field Princess Mdivani is always an absorbed onlooker and has never missed a game in which the Prince has participated.

The Princess is so fascinated by the polo being displayed by the Georgians and the other representative teams at Phipps Field that she has arranged to accompany her polo playing husband down to the field aboard their yacht for the games in which he will play.

The former Louise Van Alen is a direct descendant of Mr. John Jacob Astor and is a grand-daughter of the late Mr. James J. Van Alen, American ambassador to Italy under President Cleveland. She is also a great-granddaughter of General James J.Van Alen of Civil War fame. On her mother's side she is a grand-daughter of the late Mr. William B. Astor.

Prince Serge is a son of the late Prince Zachas Mdivani who was aide-de-camp and general at the court of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia. His mother before her marriage was Princess Elizabeth Sabolewska.

The Mdivani family, long prominent in Georgia acquired the title of Prince in 1752 for military prowress in their native Caucasus mountain; which no doubt accounts for the riding ability and athletic proclivities of the male members of the Mdivani family.

Another marriage featuring Continental nobility and American aristocracy was that of Count Carol Filipponi and Mrs. Richard Washburn Child. Here too the informality so prevalent this year among the social colony of Palm Beach was in evidence. The bride's home on the north ocean boulevard was the setting for the wedding, which was officiated at by Judge R. P. Robbins.

Life begins at the Harrison Williams villa in early season and becomes more interesting each day as the international hosts entertain the dazzling array of cosmopolites who visit them in their Palm Beach home.

One of the most colorful of the dinner parties held recently at their villa was attended by their house-guests, Princess Otto von Bismarck, Mrs. Robert H. McAdoo, Count Albrecht von Bismarck and Sir Alfred Beit and a number of their friends. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. George Atwell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Julien St. C. Chaqueneau, Mrs. Dodge Sloane, Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, Jr., Mrs. John C. O. Marriott, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Countess of Abingdon, Miss Sara Jane Sanford, Mrs. Ian Wallace, Maj. Ernest Bellamy, Maj. Cecil Pryce-Harrison, Mr. Douglas Stewart, Mr. Charles A. Munn and Paige, Mr. Milton Holden, Mr. Gilbert Darwin, Mr. William Rhinelander Stewart, Mr. Charles A. Munn and Mr. Gurnee Munn.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Williams never know what to expect while sojourning at their beautiful villa. The latest innovation in entertaining the welcome guest seems to call for a flying trip to Havana, Nassau and Mexico. The ubiquitous Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams and their house guests, Prince and Princess Otto von Bismarck, Count Albrecht von Bismarck, Countess de Zoppola, Mrs. Robert McAdoo, Mr. Cecil Beaton, of London, Sir Alfred Beit, left recently for Miami, where they boarded a plane for Havana. From there they proceded to Nassau and afterwards to Mexico, where they viewed the Malayan ruins.

The Harrison Williams are two of the most ingenious of the Palm Beach hosts in amusing their famous guests. Their home is a lovely background for the many international figures who visit them.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton have joined their many friends in Palm Beach and are staying at the Franklyn Laws Hutton villa, Hogarcito, Golf View Road, for the season.

Joining the group of less active cottagers Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor are looking forward to several months of healthful relaxation at the Emerson villa.

Mr. Taylor, who has played an important part in the nation's activities and has had one of the most diversified careers of any statesman in the history of the United States finds the picturesque villa of Mrs. Margaret Emerson a splendid base for a program which calls for very little social activity, a great deal of basking in the sun and the companionship of his charming wife.

The beautiful patio and pool of the Emerson villa form a splendid background for the healthful recreation which he and Mrs. Taylor enjoy. A dip in the pool; lunch on the terrace with a few intimate friends and possibly a game of bridge or backgammon in the lovely outdoor setting of gracefully swaying palms and sparkling water comprise the schedule of the average day for the interesting couple. The Taylors are determinted to enjoy a surcease from the constant demands on their time which Mr. Taylor's innumerable business responsibilities have brought them. A perusal of the list of Mr. Taylor's political, legal, industrial and artistic triumphs reads like the achievements of a collective group of prominent leaders rather than the life work of a single individual. Probably no figure in American contemporary life today so richly deserves the seclusion and complete relaxation which the eminent barrister and financier is enjoying in his Palm Beach retreat.

Women Know What Some Men

Are Just Beginning To Realize

Women have an inherent knowledge of fabrics and materials, and are wise to every new fashion. On the other hand, a man's only conscious effort in this direction is a desire to be neat.

He patronizes a high class merchant tailor for much the same reason—when occasion demands—as he would consult a good architect realizing that both a home and suit of clothes must be designed primarily for comfort. He is unquestionably right in this thought, as comfort is the chief asset in men's clothes . . . however, it must be combined with smartness.

Some women have the ability to grasp a men's point of view on these matters. Their advice is invaluable, for they are more concerned with proportion, or the cut of the garment than with the details of fit . . . they judge more from a silhouette point of view.

The average man pays little attention to color; he is quite apt to select things unsuitable, while a woman will offtimes discourage the dark blue or grey suit for brighter shades knowing they will be far more complimentary.

Dickens said, "A painter who has gazed too long upon some glaring color, refreshes his dazzled sight by looking upon a darker and more sombre tint." But, when we have been looking at black and gloomy hues as we have for the past few years, we are beyond description refreshed by the very reverse of the contrast.

A short time back, one of the leaders of industry called on his tailor and ordered a complete new wardrobe. He frankly stated his wife said she was ashamed of him because he looked so dowdy.

This man had not purchased clothes in three years, and, like a flash, he realized he had grown careless in regards to his appearance. What did he care when his wife sent all his old things to a charitable institution? His new clothes had been delivered and they acted like a tonic on a man run down.

Dressed for the occasion, my lady is highly complimented when her husband displays a little enthusiasm in the same direction. It is well worth while to devote a little thought and attention to our appearance . . . it doubles and triples the value of our investment.

SPORTS AT THE GREENBRIER

THE Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, where so many members of the Palm Beach colony go following their annual visit here, is a sports center complete. Seven thousand acres of forested mountain and sunlit plateau, dotted with lakes and marked with rushing water courses, comprise the vast park of the Greenbrier, offering every facility for rest and recreation.

The Old White Golf course is one of the country's most widely known. They who play the Old White have treated themselves to a new golfing experience. Opened for play in the spring of 1933, after being completely reconstructed, with a yardage of 6,368 and a par of 70, it is fitted for championship play as well as suited to more modest golfers.

With its topography making possible holes of great variance, with well-trapped greens, water hazards, and a general element of sportiness, the Old White ranks as one of the finest courses in the country. In addition to the Old White, there are two other courses, one of 18 holes and one of 9, with sporty fairways and perfect greens. Swans glide across the water courses, rustic bridges arch the streams and striking plantings add to the natural beauty of the links.

The five Casino Tennis Courts, both clay and en tout cas, are favored all the year round by the country's ranking stars, candidates for the Davis Cup Team using them annually for tournament play.

The Polo-Skeet clubhouse, within a mile of the hotel, is surrounded by complete and scenic skeet and trap courses. Tribute was paid to the beauty and excellence of this club when it was made host for the first annual West Virginia State Skeet Championships.

One of the largest indoor swimming pools in America, built of mosaic marble and filled with constantly changing water from Alvon Spring, is managed by Mr. Charles Norelius, who also manages the pool at the Breakers Hotel here.

For the sun bathers there is an outdoor beach of Lido sand opening off the pool. Atop the Greenbrier are cabanas for secluded basking in ultra violet rays.

A horse for a day and White Sulphur has forever cast its spell. Two hundred and fifty miles of trails twist through country alluring in rugged beauty and challenging in adventure. Choose a mount from the stable of seventy-five thoroughbreds, follow a stream through cool forest depths, pause on the top of a wind-swept knoll and watch the panorama of West Virginia stretch out in a shifting pattern of light and shade. One will be a convert to the saddle.

For air-minded travelers, the airport on the Greenbrier Estate provides the finest landing field in the Central South, used by the United States Army Air Corps for maneuvers. Cabin planes are available for pleasure trips over the surrounding country and for charter flights to any destination.

Two hundred and fifty miles of bridal paths are one of the principal lures for guests at the magnificent all-year-round resort hotel, The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs West Virginia.

MIAMI

WINTER winds have whistled a southward tune, which is bringing many additional visitors here this week. Responding to the rhythm, society begins to take note, and a symphony of entertainments begins.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fay recently entertained at a cocktail party at their Coral Gables home for more than 100 guests. A stringed ensemble played and a vocal program was given during the afternoon.

A tea dance for four hundred of their friends was the Charles Moon's outstanding contribution to the round of entertainments last week. The patio of the Miami Biltmore presented a tropical setting with flame vine climbing the wall and palm trees almost obscuring the archways flanking it.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clinton Fogg, Mr. and Mrs. George Baya, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Curry of Washington, D. C., Mayor and Mrs. Roscoe Brunstetter, Mrs. Thornton Fincher of Atlanta, Miss Jet Hahlo and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Considine of Washington, D. C., were among the prominent guests.

The important cultural activity in Coral Gables is the art exhibit at the Spanish ballroom in the Douglas entrance. The exhibit is being sponsored by the Coral Gables Woman's Club.

experience, who has been painting since 1927, is opening a one-man exhibit this year. Mr. Armstrong, who has studied with Charles W. Hawthorne, Richard E. Miller, George Elmer Brown of Provincetown, Mass., and Wayman Adams of Elizabeth, N. J., will show 23 canvasses in oil and a number of water colors, including portraits, landscapes and still life.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan mezzo soprano and movie star, who completely captivated her audience at the Miami Biltmore Country Club Sunday night when she appeared on the Town Hall program, is trying out a brand new anti-divorce diet.

Explaining the menu that she shares with her baritone feed two temperaments at once, and since we think jealousy feed two temperaments ta once, and since we think jealousy and suspicion and temper are caused by indigestion, we follow a routine of sane eating."

Their favorite meal is lamb chops, baked potatoes and pineapple. Once a week, on an inactive day, Miss Swarthout eats no solids at all, only fruit juices. Chapman says a fast day is part of his schedule, too.

The famous couple have been married two years and are very much in love. When Gladys is cross her husband questions her sharply about her diet. If she guiltily confesses to chocolate fudge cake and cheese souffle, he sends her right out to the rowing machine.

The Zeta Tau Alpha alumnae and the active chapter of the University of Miami are sponsoring a series of philanthropic bridge parties to benefit a health center at Currin Valley, Va. Miss Helen Shepard, president and Mrs. F. C. Parker, who has recently arrived from Pittsburgh, Pa., are in charge of arrangements for the parties which are being attended by many winter visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Phibodeau of Windsor, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick of Newport, Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce of Washington, D. C.; David T. Wilentz of Perth Amboy, N. J., famous lawyer in the Hauptmann-Lindberg case, and Mrs. Wilentz; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. ert Montgomery on Old Cutler Road. Mrs. Haynes is the former Miss Marion Dunlap.

Mrs. Joseph S. Stewart, Sr., of Atlanta, Ga., is the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Stewart on Avenue Royal Palm.

Two popular feminine guests are Mrs. Elliot Reid of Savannah, Ga., who is visiting Capt. and Mrs. William V. Andrews on Nark Avenue and Miss Mary Hammer of Knoxville, Tenn., who has arrived to spend the winter as the guest of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Andre on Avenue Majorca.

Sir John and Lady Brunton of London, England, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Brand on Avenue Seville, were complimented by their host and hostess at an "at home" Sunday afternoon. O'Shaughnessy, Mr. and Mrs. Inman Padgett, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Warde, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Zinsmaster and Mrs. Arthur E. Whiting.

A series of parties is being given by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent D. Wyman to compliment her guests, Mrs. Andrew White of Chicago and Mrs. Charles C. Kaywin of Evanston, Ill. Pottery vases, fashioned by the Seminole Indians in their settlement near here were awarded to the winning guests as prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Hathaway of Radcliffe Manor, Easton, Md., have arrived to be the guests of Mrs. Baker Cooper at her Granada Boulevard home.

Still another party, which is lending impetus to the social season here, was given by Mr. and Mrs. Whitefoord Mays to compliment their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Shaffer of Forest Hills, L. I., Sunday afternoon.

When one is a little dizzy from the social merry-goround, there's always the refreshing Key Largo Angler's Club, where one may spend the day fishing, or lunching quietly.

Henry Pinney of Worcester, Mass., recently fought heroicly with a 56-pound amberjack before landing the catch, which was termed by seasoned fishermen as one of the best catches of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Hanselman, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Baketel and Mrs. W. E. Barton of New York spent the day at the club fishing and picnicing recently.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Gilson and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Donovan of Oakland, Cal., recently explored the charms of the secluded retreat. From opposite ends of the earth came Fred Neal of Toronto, Can., Otto C. Ellison and J. N. Ellison of Minot, N. D., to cast their lines side by side into the same waters at Key Largo. A stag party from Alexandria, Va., last week included: C. R. Aholl, Charles T. Jesse, J. L. Price, P. C. Duberg, Russ Sullenborg and William Rawley.

Philip Wylie, well known American author, is vacationing on a yacht anchored near the club, with his wife and small daughter, Karen. Mr. Wylie has written several stories based on Florida scenes.

UNDER THE STARS

JARDIN BIJOU is the Mecca for fashionable members of Palm Beach society who desire to dine either indoors or out and in an atmosphere of dignity and beauty. Its patio, Basque bar and Loggia are crowded during the luncheon hours; the afternoon tea dances from five to seven o'clock and for dinner and supper during the evening. The Gala Friday nights are an event looked forward to with pleasure by the members of the cottage and hotel colonies.

Miss Cobina Wright, delightful social registerite entertainer and Mario Bragiotte, one of the great American pianists, made their initial appearance of the season at Jardin Bijou last week and were greeted by an enthusiastic throng. Mr. Bragiotti comes direct from the Central Park Casino, New York City and both he and Miss Wright are known to cosmopolitanites all over the world. Mr. Louis Cantone received the congratulations of his guests upon securing such exceptional and high class entertainers.

Mrs. Glenn V. Hodges entertained one night last week in honor of Dr. Walter Dandy of Baltimore. Their table overlooked the beautiful patio of Jardin Bijou. The guests were Senor and Senora Gonzales Prada, Dr. and Mrs. Hobert E. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent, Mrs. George Luke Mesker, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Miss Beatrice P. English, Miss Margaret Connell, Comte Serge Fleury, Mr. Edward T. Stotesbury, Mr. Serge Rovensky, Mr. Charlton Yarnall and Mr. Eliot Wadsworth.

Mrs. Newell W. Tilton gave a largely attended cocktail party in the patio of Jardin Bijou yesterday afternoon. A miniature bar had previously been established in the orange grove under the direction of the ingenious Mr. Cantone.

Zelli, the man of many personalities and known over two continents for his famous restaurant in the Montmarte of Paris, bearing the same name, has been royally welcomed by his many friends and well-wishers since his arrival and establishment of the new Zelli in Palm Beach, opposite the Palm Beach Hotel on Sunrise Avenue.

Noted as a most gracious host and superb restaurateur, Zelli has been honored by the presence of representative resort residents and winter visitors since his opening, including distinguished cosmopolites and famous figures of the stage, radio and the arts.

Ross MacLean, as master of ceremonies, late of the Versailles Club, is most popular with those dropping in for dinner or supper, being deluged with requests for special songs, while lovely Eleanor Talcott, Boston society girl, has won her way into the hearts of her audience singing modern songs and ballads during dinner and cocktail hour. Shah Baronin and Pur Pasha, form a background for the charming Leyla Gelofyen, in exotic dance numbers direct from the court of the Shah. Henne Borshar, charming girl violinist, entrances her audience with her delightful Persian airs. Paul Capron, chef extraordinaire, supervises the preparation of delectable viands for the luncheon and dinner hour, as well as delicious hors d'ouvres for the popular cocktail hour.

An interesting dinner party noted recently was that of Mr. Woolworth Donahue, Mrs. Frederick Gilmore and Mr. Clemente Ballin. Mrs. Angelica Stearns, Mrs. Seide de la Fone and Miss Emilie Ramirez of Hayana were also dinner guests recently. Another party noted was that of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle, the Misses Rosalie and Jeananne Smyth, Mrs. Joseph Hoover, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoover, Mrs. W. R. Braitsford, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lyman, Mr. John Bowland, Mr. Biron Valier. Mr. and Mrs. W. Douglas Burden were recent hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tunney, Mr. John Churchill, Mr. Phillip Barry and others. Noted in a group having dinner near the fireplace were Mr. William Rhinelander Stewart and Mrs. Allan Ryan.

Outstanding among events at the restaurants during the coming week, is the Green and White Ball, to be held at the Colony Club on Friday night, for the benefit of the Children's Welfare Aid of the Palm Beaches.

The charity, which is now in its fourth year, was founded by Mrs. N. B. Spingold, to provide hot lunches and other necessities for needy school children in the West Palm Beach area. In addition, substantial donations are made to various other charities having children under their jurisdiction. Two of the largest beneficiaries in this category, from last year's fund, were the children's ward of the Good Samaritan Hospital, and the Salvation Army.

The event is sponsored by an unusually distinguished list including Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, the Grand Duke Dmitri, the Princess Ilynski, Mrs. James Corrigan, Mrs. Joshua S. Cosden, Mr. and Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Mrs. Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, Mr. and Mrs. Harold FitzGerald, Prince George of Russia, Captain, the Right Honorable Frederick E. The series of gala Wednesday nights being held at the Patio, is drawing capacity attendances weekly to the former County Road restaurant. Tomorrow night will be celebrated as "Tropical Park Night." The establishment will be treated for the occasion with an unusual decorative scheme, and, as usual at these affairs, there will be a special bill of entertainment.

On the program will be such stars of the entertainment world as Georges Metaxa, Frances Maddux, Arthur Brown and Val Ernie and His Continentals.

Plans are being completed for the annual Fashion and Jewel Show to be held at the Patio on Feb. 26. At this event there will be showings by the country's leading modistes and jewelers of the lates modes. A capacity attendance is bound to be on hand for the event. Last year all reservations had been taken up several days ahead of the function.

A change in the entertainment program at the Patio will take place on Feb. 21. On March 4, "Carnival Night" will be celebrated at the Patio.

Round the World

SSUMING that if a thing can be made good enough there is a market for it and somebody will surely buy, and as we cannot conceive how any addition or alteration to the make-up of our blend can in anyway better the quality of same, we have ventured on the idealistic attempt to somehow—if possible—further refine our product by following the example of famous East India Sherry shippers in their time-honoured custom of voyaging from time to time occasional parcels of Wine Round the World, as their crowning effort to obtain elaborated perfection believing by these means to be able to justify their Wines being selected for Royal functions.

As such, also, we commend our VOYAGED KINGS RANSOM Scotch Whisky brand, which, prior to this innovation, already enjoyed a considerable reputation and sale as the most expensive Whisky from Scotland.

The present route followed is from Glasgow to Capetown, Australia, and New Zealand and from thence around Cape Horn to Buenos Aires, Madeira and back Home to Scotland.

The benefits derived from this voyage are that it develops an exquisite bouquet and gives a soft, round flavour, improving the taste, so that it is more like a Liqueur Brandy of Ancient Lineage, consequent on the long exposure of the Casks to the humid atmosphere of the sea, the varied climatic conditions, and the perpetual movement of the whisky crossing the Equator twice on its long voyage of over 30,000 miles.

In the most exclusive Messes, Clubs, Hotels and Restaurants throughout the World, KINGS RANSOM Whisky is invariably listed at the top of each Wine List and commands the highest price, being usually the Best Seller.

There is, today as always, one basic reason for owning the Lincoln—a desire for the best. Now, the transposed particularly to the man encouraged by the business outlook. He may gratify the wish for a fine possession of which he and his household shall be proud. He may own the car he has long planned to own. . . . Year after year, the Lincoln demonstrates anew its sovereignty over road and avenue. The car for 1936 is finer than ever before, it approaches even more closely than its predecessors the ideal "to build the nearly perfect motor car." To power the Lincoln, engineers contribute the famous 12-cylinder engine—a precision motor of acknowledged excellence. It is of the V-type—the type which holds the most coveted records of land, sea and air. . . . Skilfully, coachmakers have blended traditional Lincoln beauty with the flowing contours of modern design. Fenders, front and rear, have been newly designed. The radiator grille is deeper, handsomer. MISS KATHERINE WAIT the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Luther A. Wait of 315 Barton Avenue.

Long noted as a gathering spot for the artists, writers, stage and screen celebrites who visit Palm Beach, the Sun and Surf Club this year has entertained a larger representation of internationally renowned talent than ever before.

With the majority of the Artists and Writers making the unique sea-side Spa their headquarters during their stay here and all of the headliners in the Kiwanis Benefit Performance spending their spare time doing the many things there are to do at the Sun and Surf, the club has been humming with activity.

The backgammon tournament held recently for the members brought out some exciting games and in the latter stages Sam Harris, co-producer with Arthur Hammerstein in the annual Kiwanis performance and one of the country, top flight prdoucers, gave the leaders in the tournament palpitation with his unorthodox but highly effective playing.

Paddle-ball, one of Jack Mitchell's many innovations in the sports world has taken a definite place in the program of games played at the club and with its lightning speed and spectacular plays has proven popular with the sports loving gathering.

One of the most interesting diversions enjoyed at the Sun and Surf is volley-ball. The beach court is often the scene of an animated group of care-free players who entertain not only themselves but the bathers basking on the beach and the occupants of the Cabana and ocean terrace with their spirited performances.

Sun bathing in the sheltered confines of the solarium has attracted many of the members. With all of the comfort and relaxation found on the beach minus the annoyances encountered there, the sun baskers enjoy the health-giving rays of the sun without having their nicely baked bodies sprinkled by the shaggy haired dog who invariably choses a spot directly over their incumbent forms to shake himself and the beach pest who drops lighted cigarettes on your exposed anatomy.

Around the sparkling blue of the pool many of the gay lunchers find the setting of the flagstoned terrace and the excellent cuisine of the club an ideal combination on warm days. Here they can watch the activities centering around the one and three meter diving boards of the pool while enjoying luncheon or cocktails.

Under the sheltering umbrellas recently a gayly chatting group comprised of Mrs. J. E. McAuliffe, Mrs. J. A. Kienle and Mrs. C. J. Danphinot found the pool-side terrace a highly diverting setting.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker found the hospitality of Mrs. William Miller and the cheerful environs of the Sun and Surf Club a pleasant combination.

Mr. W. P. Dunn was the guest of Miss Eleanor Singleton and the pair were noted chatting pleasantly with many of their friends.

Mrs. Carolyn Sylvester entertained Mrs. Bryan Leonard at luncheon on the ocean terrace. At another table a carefree luncheon party consisting of Mrs. Edward Casey and her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Collins and Mr. Arthur Driscoll, cnjoyed one of the tasteful luncheons served by the club.

A few of the throng enjoying the facilities of the club were Mr. and Mrs. William Bade, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman, Mrs. Jesse Herold, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Oestreicher, Mr. George Jessel, Mrs. Norma Talmadge Jessel, Miss Edna Ferber and Mr. and Mrs. James Shevlin.

TASTES AND TOILETTES

MORE than ever before, feminine fashions seem to live and breathe—ever changing and to most of us becoming more beautiful and more expressive of our American individuality.

Fabrics this season have reached a new high in beauty and adaptability, and the colors shown in even the plainest frocks must have been inspired by great artists. Simple lines and exquisite workmanship distinguish the gowns seen in the smartest places with the slender silhouette predominating.

Mrs. Francis A. Shaughnessy while attending a dinner the other night, wore a becoming gown of nude crepe, styled in princess fashion with pointed panels stitched and fitted at the waist. A handsome clip of diamonds and emeralds was posed at the V decolletage and her loose, cape-like coat was edged in mink.

Mrs. Nathan D. Bill looked charming while at dinner recently when she wore a smart gown of white angel skin crepe scattered with dainty garden flowers in pastel shades. Wide straps were looped at the shoulders and the long slender skirt was plain in front with extreme fullness added by means of a panel in the center back.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. W. E. Woollard, of Albany, N. Y., who is a guest at the Breakers, was noted at a dinner recently wearing a beautiful gown of American beauty red chiffon. Full panels in Grecian lines formed the bodice supported by braided straps of the fabric. The simple classic skirt had pleated gores in front and back, released for fullness. A belt of silver ropes was touched with navy and the accompanying cape of chiffon was also in blue.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. William T. Hoops drew admiring glances with her floral printed gown in red on white. The red flowers were cut out and appliqued to the neckline and on the bodice in an unusual effect. The skirt had a moulded hip line, with a soft flare to the hem.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

At a recent dinner, Mrs. Edwin G. Lauder looked charming in a dinner gown of vivid, splashy print fashioned with squared neckline and reveres. A small cluster of flowers was worn at the front decollete. The beautiful skirt had a fitted yoke ending in sunburst pleating.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Pink lace was the choice of Mrs. Joseph McKee Madden at a recent party. The sheer, delicate fabric was scattered all over with irridescent sequins to sparkle and quiver in the soft lights, and the bared shoulders had narrow decolletage straps.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Princess Mdivani was beautifully attired the other evening in a gown of shining black haircloth, fashioned with widening tiers swinging from the hips and dipping slightly in back. The bodice of black net was shirred from narrow bands of the cloth with the heart-shaped decolletage supported by narrow shoulder straps.

 \diamond \diamond \diamond \diamond

Ashes of roses in Rodier ratine created a stunning suit worn by Mrs. Robert D. Lewis last week. The straight skirt was topped by a blouse of crepe in a matching shade, buttoned tightly down the front in military effect. The semifitted coat had a gray fox collar and her small grosgrain hat was in a soft shade of rose.

While attending a dinner at the Everglades Club given by the Earl of Carnarvon, the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest was beautifully gowned in black marquisette. Dots and dashes of rhinestones were scattered over the entire gown with a concentrated pattern outlining the decolletage. Fullness was added in the skirt by means of a long V panel in the back.

Miss Ruth Wallace looked very attractive the other evening in a dance dress of coral chiffon scattered here and there with brilliants. The graceful skirt gathered fullness from the hips and the cape falling below the waistline had a tiny standing collar tied in a soft bow under the chin.

 \diamond \diamond \diamond \diamond

Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, who with her father, Governor James M. Curley, of Massachusetts, were guests of honor at dinner last week, looked charming in a gown of white accordian pleated chiffon with rhinestone butterflies hovering over the bodice. The cape was entirely pleated and edged in rich white fox.

A luncheon ensemble worn by Mrs. Frederick Gould a short time ago, was of white silk pique, with front closing finished with scallops edged in red. Appliqued motifs in the same shade trimmed the front of the bodice. Her short box coat was of red Rodier fabric and her hat of white pique had a shallow crown and wide brim.

Gray lace combined with net was the choice of Mrs. Walter Gaston for an evening gown worn recently. The front was simply styled with wide reveres at the neckline and short cape sleeves edged in net covered the shoulders. Long loose panels of lace and net were attached to the skirt in back and the low decolletage was finished with a butterfly bow of lace. Small coral flowers on each shoulder furnished the only note of color.

When attending the Romany performance at the Everglades Club, Miss Margaret Crowley looked charming in a gown of dull black slipper satin, generously studded with brilliants. The decolletage was low with a suggestion of draping in the bodice, and the skirt was pencil slim.

Flame-colored, hammered satin was worn by Mrs. Walter Hopkins on the same evening. A brilliant jeweled clip adorned the neckline, and over it she wore a hip length, flared cape of ermine.

Mrs. William G. Havill was a guest at luncheon the other day and was attractively attired in a white crepe ensemble. The frock was styled simply with a scarf collar of vivid blue in delightful contrast, and the hip length box coat, had loose sleeves and a round neckline. With it she wore a wide brimmed hat of white fabric, trimmed with just a touch of blue.

Southern colonists grow more tailored every day. So arrive with one of our inimitable suits done in linen. This is from a special series by our British designer. It is white with navy pipings and navy print blouse. The white patent leather sailor is tied under the chin as the French seamen did a century back.—From Bergdorf Goodman.

AMONG THE PALMS

HE beautiful Breakers Hotel with its excellent facilities for perfect service and its pleasant social life, is filled to capacity with guests from all corners of the earth. Some of them find time for only a brief sojourn in the resort, and others make the Breakers their winter home, arriving early and staying until the great doors close to indicate the end of another season.

Prominent among the latter are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hopkins of Baltimore, Md., well known resort visitors who take an important part in the social activities of Palm Beach. They are members of the Everglades Club and the Bath and Tennis Club.

Among the smart parties given recently by members of the Breakers contingent was the dinner at which Mrs. Henry McSweeney, of Atlantic City, New Jersey, entertained on February eighteenth honoring Mr. McSweeney on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. Guests were seated at one long table decorated with five lovely floral arrangements of dark red roses, white lilacs, white freesia and blue iris. Fayors for the women were sport watches, and for the men gold tie clips. Orchid and lily of the valley corsages marked the places for the women and carnation boutonnieres for the men.

The guests were Justice and Mrs. John W. Kephart, Judge William E. Woollard, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daly, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Kischell, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garmany, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. William Mac-

THE wheel of fashion spins and stops at some point where it has stopped before—there is nothing new under the sun. Looking closely, I notice the wheel has stopped at contrasting colored waistcoats. This is probably due to the bright Floridian sunlight on the wheel, or perhaps because business is on the upgrade. Whatever it is, there has been a decided tendency at these points to brighten up the masculine attire.

Light colored linen waistcoats with a dark blue coat and trousers, or brown or grey dittos is comparable to coming out of a London fog into bright sunlight. Harmonizing linen waistcoats will be worn until such times as they become commonplace; they are highly recommended for their added touch of smartness.

Last summer, the wheel stopped at knickerbockers—they are in vogue, and there will be a long wait before slacks are registered as proper golf attire; fads do not last long. Some time back, one of our great writers wrote a very clever story entitled, "Why Play Golf in A Monocle?" It was very funny, and it was evident the writer saw the game losing cast. Likewise many gentlemen who play golf today are of the same opinion. It is for this reason they are wearing the proper and practical attire on the golf course. Sloppy slacks are in the discard, and knickerbockers are back again to stay.

There is a noticeable increase in semi-dressy clothes due to the cocktail hour. On these occasions, one must look smarter than usual, especially as the ladies are bedecked in beautiful afternoon gowns. A black, one-button sack coat and waistcoat, with a cheerful striped trouser, and on bright days, a light dove or fawn colored waistcoat, replacing the black one. However, when wearing a fancy waistcoat, do not make the mistake of putting on glaring neckwear. . . a darkish grey or black and white is good looking, especially when worn with a pearl pin.

A very necessary adjunct is to clad the feet properly. So many overlook this important detail. The correct shoes to wear with a dressy outfit are plain tipped calfskin or patent leather with which may be worn light tan or grey spats. The same style with light tan or grey box cloth uppers to button is more formal.

The colored dinner suits are steadily gaining in favor. This garment designed for informal affairs is now worn by the younger set for more formal occasions. Ere long we may expect a riot of color on the dance floor.

MIAMI

L IVING in the sun has an irresistible charm for shivering northerners who are invading Coral Gables like an army of sun worshippers.

But it's hard to find a place in the sun these days since new international recruits from all over the world have joined in the southward parade.

A novel feature of the brilliant Helen Lee Doherty Milk Fund ball, Thursday, February 20, at the Miami Biltmore Country Club, was a group of society girls, who dressed as old-fashioned dairy maids in blue crinoline dresses with ruffled organdy aprons and bonnets.

CORAL GABLES, MIAMI, FLORIDA

UNDER THE STARS

FOR the fourth year in succession the Colony Club was thronged to capacity at the Green and White Ball, held last Friday night. Funds raised are for the benefit of the Children's Welfare Aid of the Palm Beaches. Mrs. N. B. Spingold is founder and president of the organization.

The brilliance of the attending throng was equalled by the high calibre floor show presented. All artists donated their services to the charity. Among them were Harry Richman, Sophie Tucker, Deslys & Clark, The Ernie Holst Orchestra, the Colony Club Trio and a selected cast from the Earl Carroll Vanities.

Among those giving dinners or suppers on the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Mr. and Mrs. John C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hasler, Mrs. Paul Cook Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. B. Adams, Mrs. Samuel Borchard, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Rosenstiel, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ittleson, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Housman, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Shaughnessy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lipper, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vance Storrs, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Hugh Murray, Mr. Charles A. Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hudson Marks, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Volk, Col. and Mrs. H. A. Braman, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Horton, Col. Edward R. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Cooper, Mr. J. Arthur Hull, Mr. M. A. Millame, Dr. W. E. Weiss, Dr. H. L. Nietert, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Salvin and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hekma.

The gala dinner dance to be held at the Colony Club tomorrow night, and the one on Saturday, will probably mark the high spots of the season, when a capacity throng is expected at both events.

The usual weekly Amateur Night will be held on Thursday night. These events always bring out a large attendance and afford a program of unique entertainment.

 \diamond \diamond \diamond

The Patio has inaugurated a novelty in its newsreel cameraman. The photographer travels throughout the resort during the week, and on Sunday nights the films are shown at the Patio. They usually include informal views of members of the colony, who may see themselves at play on the Patio screen.

One of the most successful evenings held at the Patio was the recent contest for the resort's handsomest man—Mr. M. Dorland Doyle winning the honors and receiving as a reward a fitted traveling case. Judgment was passed on Mr. Doyle's qualifications by a jury comprising Miss Nancy Randolph, society editor of the New York Daily News; the Countess de Perceri, better known as Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," and Mrs. George Jessel, the former Norma Talmadge, cinema star.

The weekly drawings for three prizes, held every Wednesday night at the Patio, are also proving of an unusual interest to colonists. Each time a guest goes to the Patio during the week, he or she is given a card bearing a number. Every Wednesday night these numbers are drawn and first, second and third prize winners receive respectively, a magnum of champagne, a quart of champagne and a bottle of brandy.

Dwight Fiske, one of the country's best known entertainers, opened at the Patio during the week-end for a limited engagement. Mr. Fiske is probably one of the best known entertainers in the country today. His songs are original, and are rendered in a manner which none other has thus far been able to successfully imitate. Also on the program are Arthur Brown, appearing in a program of songs and serving as master of ceremonies, and Val Ernie and His Continentals.

Smart luncheon groups, cocktail parties and numerous gatherings of dinner parties are all contributing to the success of Zelli's with its charming atmosphere of bon vivant, superb cuisine and entertainment.

With the weather assuming a most favorable trend, the patio of Zelli's provides a delightful place to dine in the sunny afternoon or to dance under the stars during the dinner hour and the late supper period.

Kur-Zhene and his Persian orchestra afford musical entertainment of a more novel type during these periods, with Ross McLean, extraordinary master of ceremonies, singing many of the latest numbers and the lovely Eleanor Talcott appearing during the cocktail hour and through dinner and late supper, and her deep contralto and charming personality holding the attention of all present while she sings any number of popular songs.

The cocktail interval marks a pleasant interlude at Zelli's with many dropping in to hear Miss Talcott's merry melodies accompanied by the drawing room orchestra.

Greeted personally by Zelli and occupying a table in the royal box recently were Prince Mikhail A. Goundoroff with Mrs. Arthur Hudson Marks, while nearby Mr. and Mrs. O. Frank Woodward had an interesting party. At another table were observed Mr. Leslie Sherman, Miss Elizabeth Sherman, Mrs. George Reed and Mr. Clarence Banks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jaeckel had as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Merrill, Mr. J. C. Arnold and Mr. W. L. Durken.

Mr. John P. Wemple, Mr. Harry Appleton Curtis and Mr. James Curtis were noted at a nearby table having dinner while across from them were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Gray, Mrs. Charles Stewart Grier Means of the Breakers, and also Mr. C. C. Roberto and Miss Elizabeth Parcells.

Mrs. Charles F. Stauffer of Lancaster, Pa., entertained a group of fourteen guests for dinner including Justice John B. Kephart and Mrs. Kephart, of the Breakers; Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Woolworth, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Weber and Miss Sarah Ann Stauffer.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Livingston were present in the royal box and Col. and Mrs. Seth Wheeler also had at dinner Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jacoby, Miss Virginia Guard and Major William Whitcomb, Mr. Roberto Crippa and Miss Jackie Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meade, Mr. George Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Linard, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Cummings, Col. and Mrs. Harry Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Ward, Mr. Jackson Cunningham and Mr. H. Garland Henderson.

Among those who entertained at the Jardin Bijou recently were Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener II, whose guests included Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Gray. Another party included Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith Bingham, Mr. David Smith Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mills, the Misses Stevenson, H. H. Prince George and Prince Sherbatoff.

Control of Property May Be Retained

The idea that the control of property turned over to a Trust Company for supervision or management is lost is not uncommon. Such is not the case, however, as arrangements can be made to suit the particular requirements of the customer.

For example, in a Custodian account, the customer retains control of the funds or securities and may terminate the account at will. An extended scope of authority may also be reserved for the beneficiaries of a trust account.

This Company offers many valuable services to those who have the responsibility of administering property of any sort. Custodian, Agency and Safekeeping Accounts, Escrow Services, Security Sales and Purchases and Property Management are but a portion of services now being rendered an ever increasing clientele.

"BEAUTY IS NOT A GIFT . . .

IT'S A HABIT"

SAYS

germaine monteil

FAMOUS FRENCH COUTURIER

"No gown in the world—be it fashioned from cloth of gold and hemmed with sables—can make a woman beautiful when age has etched cruel lines into her face. The secret every couturiere knows is this: a truly great gown is designed to call attention—not to itself—but to its wearer. And a great gown is bitter irony when its wearer has lost the clear radiance, the firm contours of youth."

The following women of distinction, acclaim these new beauty products as the perfect answer to their beauty problems.

Countess Therese De Carman Chimay
Princess de Braganza
Duchesse de Sangro
Princess Robert de Broglie
Princesse Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst
Isabella Principessa Colonna
Her Royal and Imperial Highness Archduchesse Fanny

Germaine Monteil chooses the following shops in Palm Beach, Miami, and Miami Beach to present her exquisite cosmetiques.

If so, we suggest that more thrills than one await you in the Buick Roadmaster or the Limited.

And with an almost extravagant spaciousness, they also give you such fingertip lightness of control, such silky mobility and easy obedience that a hundred pound woman can drive one of these cars all day long.
